Charges laid over washout into Gull River

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Silt from one of the excavation holes on Minden's main street washed into the Gull River, resulting in charges against the landowner and contractor.

A worker with the Ministry of Natural Resources was driving by the Bobcaygeon Road site during the week of March 12. He noticed a flow of water going from the hole in front of Brad Bradamore's house, under the road and down Prentice Street. The silt-filled water then went into a swamp which feeds into the Gull River.

Both Bradamore and Larry Hughes, a contractor who dug the hole, were subsequently charged by the MNR under the Fisheries Act for allowing material which could endanger spawning areas to enter the river.

"The silt came out in a fairly big gush," says Fish and Wildlife Supervisor Stan Flemming. When the pit could not retain the excess spring water, it overflowed into the ditch. The two other excavation sites along the road were checked but they are fine, he adds.

Gull River flows into Gull Lake, which is a "highly sensitive lake trout lake," Flemming says. Silt is water-borne clay which can adverse-

BOE sells Lakeview to SSFC: $390,000

Funds to help build classrooms

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

After months of negotiations, the Haliburton County Board of Education has agreed to sell the Lakeview School for $390,000 to Sir Sandford Fleming College.

The sale of the school (also known as the Norm Sisco Centre) is part of a board initiative to relieve the overcrowding in both Minden and Haliburton Villages' elementary schools through proposed building projects.

Half of the money will be paid this year, and the other half next year at 10 per cent interest.

Trustees unanimously passed a motion approving the sale at last

A board press release says money received from the sale of a school must be placed in a Capital Reserve Fund, and may only be used with Ministry approval for new building projects.

A request has been sent to Education Minister Sean Conway asking the province to share the cost of building.

Salvatori told The Echo he feels positive about the meeting between ministry officials and the delegation made up of Director Stuart Baker, Business Administrator Jim Bradley, Salvatori—representing Haliburton Village—and vice-chairman Cheryl Murdoch, representing Minden.

"I felt good about it. Their (funding) allocations are booked for 10

Tuesday's board meeting.

"Hopefully, we'll get some action on building a new school," board chairman Len Salvatori said after the vote which followed a closed discussion.

On Thursday, final approval was received when a delegation of local board members, representatives of the college, and local MPP John Eakins met with officials from the Ministry of Education in Toronto.

Currently, two rooms at Lakeview house Kindergarten students of Victoria Street school, and two rooms are rented out to Sir Sandford Fleming.

The college has agreed to allow the board to continue housing the Kindergarten classes in the building for a period of two years while arrangements are being made for new facilities.

years, but there's always some money to find if you're strapped."

Salvatori notes that Conway will be in the county on Friday afternoon to see how accommodation in the two villages has become a crisis.

Now that the sale of Lakeview is approved, the board must deal with two more accommodation problems.

The building plan, released last December, includes the sale of Haliburton's Victoria Street Public School (which was declared a candidate for closure in March 1989).

Also, a rezoning of the old IGA store in Minden only allows it to be used as a primary school until September of 1991.

Two long-term options for providing additional space are being evaluated: the board might build two

Public may pay for hospital costs

by MARTHA PERKINS

Public funds raised for the promised 18-bed chronic care unit may be used to pay the architects whose plans may never be taken out of the drawer again.

In 1986, the Ministry of Health gave approval for the unit, which was to be built onto the Haliburton Hospital. The Ministry would pay two-thirds of the cost and local government and residents had to pay the rest.

A subsequent fundraising campaign was highly successful, with $440,000 in the bank by the time it ended two years ago. NORR Partnership was hired to draw up the plans, which after a lengthy approval process, were tender-ready last spring.

Since then, Health Minister Elinor Caplan has put the project on hold until the steering committee on long-term health care in the county makes its report—probably in several months.

But the costs incurred to this point must be paid. Total one-time costs are $380,000, of which $326,000 is architect's fees. The ministry has paid for two-thirds of that, and St.

Joseph's General Hospital in Peterborough, which owns both the Minden and Haliburton Hospitals, has had to pay the other third.

"It's an issue for us," says Frank Lussing, chief executive officer of St. Joseph's. "It's $126,000 that's gone that we have nothing to show for."

"No decision has yet been made where the funds are coming from. One could ask the extent to which the funds donated by the community should be used," he adds.

Those funds are now in a trust, earning interest.

"That kind of thing (architect's fees) is normally an overall construction cost," says Lussing. Funds raised were supposed to pay for one-third of those costs.

However, until the board makes its decision, Lussing says where the money comes from "is an academic issue." He expects the decision to be made in a month or two.

Martin Lumber sale now conditional on MNR transferring timber licenses

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Martin Lumber says the sale of its Harcourt operation depends on the Ministry of Natural Resources approving timber licences, but the MNR says it's up to Martin Lumber to prove the need for crown timber.

Robert Bury and Company (Canada) has offered to buy the sawmill and planing mill, thereby putting about 125 laid-off workers back on the job. All conditions have been satisfied and Martin president Norman Laine says the deal will go through if the ministry agrees to transfer Martin's timber licences and timber volume agreements to Bury.

These agreements allow Martin to log on crown land.

"There do not appear to be any reasons at this point for the Ministry to turn down the applications for the transfer of licences," says Laine in a press release. "If these applications are turned down, the transaction will fail."

"The (Harcourt) mill was running at 25 to 30 per cent on crown wood so we can't be a major criteria," says Terry Dodds, a MNR regional forester, contacted at his Huntsville office.

Dodds says it's up to Martin to write "a business case. They have to justify their case as to why they need the wood."

Martin Lumber has been asked to write a more detailed outline of its need to access crown lands.

It's the ministry's policy not to transfer limits automatically when businesses are sold, Dodds says, and it is reviewing lumbering practices in this region.

"Generally in the Ottawa Valley we have too many mills for a limited supply of wood. We're running at 48 per cent capacity," he says.

In the region, the Harcourt operation is one of the largest mills but regardless of size, each mill must prove why it should get a share of the crown timber. And the ministry is in favour of having those trees harvested.

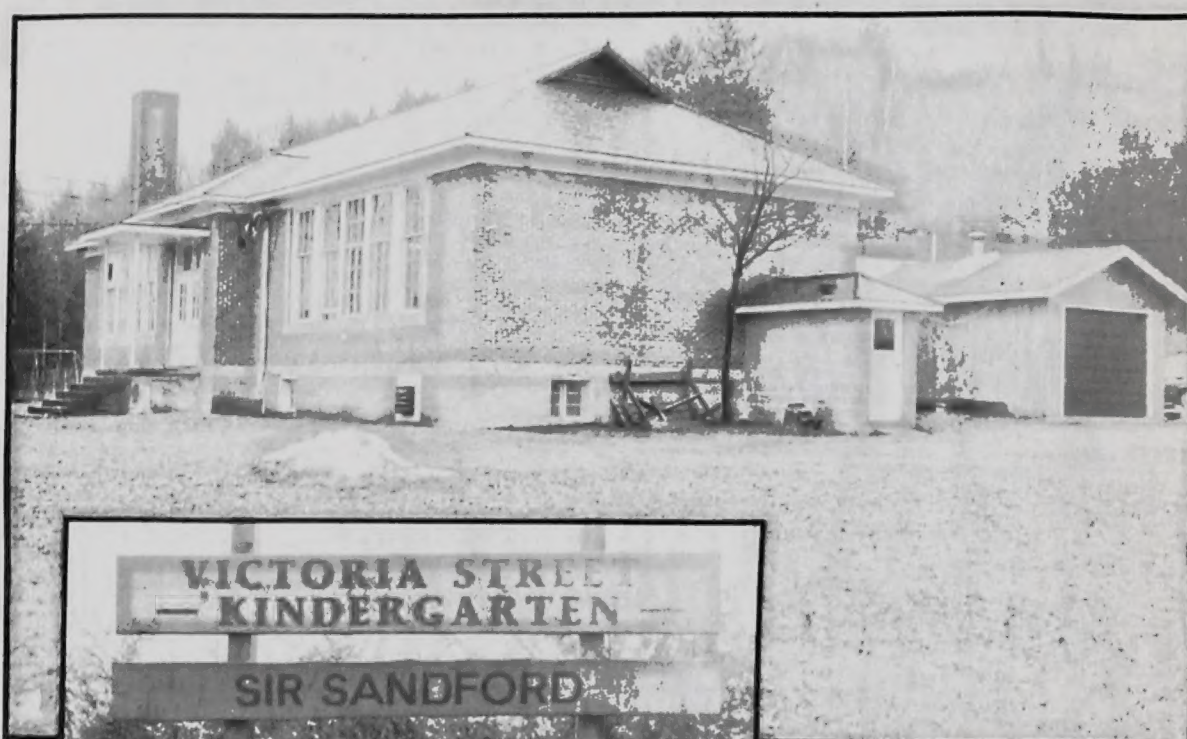

"We wouldn't cut back on timber rights because we want the resource to be used," Dodds says.

A BATTLE LOST: Dysart firemen did their best to quell a blaze that broke out in a Haliburton Lake cottage on Monday morning, but the fire was well established by the time they arrived, and the cottage, in the South Bay area, was gutted. No one was using the cottage at the time of the blaze, the cause of which has not been established. Local residents assisted firefighters in trying to douse the flames.

Board will run class geared to treat mental health problems

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Since no agency is willing to enter into an agreement, a transitional classroom for students with mental health problems will be operated by the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Previously, the class located at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School was run by the board in conjunction with Kinark Child and Family Services as a Section 25 classroom. Superintendent Dale Robinson told trustees at Tuesday night's meeting.

However, Kinark recently decided to use its funds elsewhere, and will end its agreement with the board as of the next school year.

"But we have to continue offering service to these children," said Robinson. The class services children with mental health problems who don't function well with other students.

The board had negotiated with another agency, but they couldn't get funding, said Robinson.

Still, "the children in that class should not be left high and dry," he said, adding that most of the children are not yet ready to enter a regular classroom setting.

With no agency working with the board, the class won't be classified under the Ministry of Education's Section 25 designation, and will now be identified as a transitional class.

Unfortunately, this means the ministry will no longer fund a teacher for the classroom. The board must now cover this cost, and also pay for an assistant which had been provided by Kinark. There may also be transportation costs, Robinson explained.

Two needs offered in a Section 25 classroom are mental health treatment and education.

"An agency such as Kinark looked after the child's mental health," said Robinson, adding that, "just because Kinark has pulled out of the classroom, doesn't mean they'll stop providing support."

Currently, there are five students in the Section 25 classroom, but four more who require the service have been identified.

Robinson said there must be a strict screening process before a child will be enrolled in the class. "It's only for those with genuine mental health problems" who need treatment before they can enter the regular classroom, and shouldn't be used as a "dumping ground."

"In Haliburton County, how else are we going to give them an education? We either provide it here, or pay for it somewhere else."

Robinson also reported that the board recently signed an agreement to continue operating a Section 25 classroom in conjunction with Chimo Youth and Family Services at Irondale.

Board to hire 9 teachers to keep pace with enrollment

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

To deal with ever increasing number of students filling area elementary schools, trustees of the Haliburton County Board of Education have approved an increase of nine regular classroom teachers for next September.

At Tuesday night's meeting, Director of Education Stuart Baker said there are two criteria elementary school principals must meet in planning for the next school year: to maintain a Pupil Teacher Ratio (PTR) of no less than 15 to one, and to load classrooms with no more than 30 pupils.

Baker told trustees there are two approaches principals may take to meet these goals: to have relatively large class sizes and a larger support staff, or to keep classes small and use more teachers in regular class settings.

Another thing to keep in mind, said Baker, is that the Ministry of Education supplies grants when Grade 1 and 2 classes meet a PTR of 20 to one (this is based on an average for the county).

To meet this requirement, increased enrollment, and the required preparation time of 200 minutes for each teacher, Baker said the board would require nine more teachers.

Referring to the ministry grant, Trustee Craig Pettit asked, "Is there a point where the money evens out what it costs to hire more teachers?"

Business Administrator Jim Bradley said the grant only covers about half a teacher's salary.

Because an additional four classes are being set up in Minden, five of the teachers would work at Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

At Haliburton's Victoria Street Public School, an added 0.5 teacher-time would be needed to provide preparation time.

And at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary—which will have two more Grade 3 classes added in September—an additional 3.5 teachers are required.

Baker commended Principal Doug Devolin for his plan to accommodate these Grade 3 students without adding portables.

"The problem is, the greatest increases are in schools which are already full," said Baker.

There are currently 620 students enrolled at Archie Stouffer, and 650 enrolled at J. Douglas Hodgson. Next year, Baker predicted, "the two major elementary schools will be larger than the high school in enrollment. We'll generate too many students—more than we'll be able to accommodate in two buildings."

Estimated enrollment is partly based on information received from the local health unit on the number of severance applications currently underway, "to see how many areas will boom," said Baker, who learned that "school zones with the heaviest loads are where most of the lots have been created." He said 1,300 residential lots were created ly affect spawning areas and overall water quality.

"We're not prepared to lost fish habitat as a result of development," he adds.

Bradmore and the excavation site have become controversial in Minden recently, but Flemming says that has nothing to do with the charges. "Charges would have been laid regardless of who it was."

Flemming commends Bradmore and Hughes for responding quickly after the MNR phoned them about the washout that night. The two men, whose court date is scheduled for this Friday in Minden, used filter cloths to prevent more silt from entering the ditch.

Meanwhile, the MNR has arranged a seminar for contractors to prevent this sort of thing from happening again. In the past year, similar seminars have been held for contractors and realtors.

From 10 to 4 on April 26, contractors and anyone else who's interested can drop by Our Lady of Fatima hall. The MNR will have information booths which outline the rules pertaining to excavation and development near water, and what preventative measures can be taken to prevent adverse effects.

"There are a number of precautions which should be taken" and they will be described at the seminar, Flemming says.

primary (Kindergarten to Grade 3) schools, one each at J. Douglas Hodgson and Archie Stouffer Elementary schools; or an additional Kindergarten to Grade 8 school will be built to house students of both villages.

The process of selling any school property is controlled by the Ministry of Education.

Following a procedure in proper succession, such property must first be offered to a publicly supported post-secondary educational institution; the municipality in which the building is located, a metropolitan municipality or regional municipality, or boards and agencies under the governance of such municipalities; a provincial government ministry; or a federal government ministry.

If none of these agencies show interest, then the board can list the property for sale on the open market.

Property value must be determined by an independent registered realty appraiser and reviewed by the Ministry of Education.

Of course, the next challenge is now that people are "on the road again", they've got to be able to get into buildings. The Harvest restaurant had a temporary ramp when it welcomed bus patrons last week, and committee members hope other businesses will be willing to do the same.

Forest Tent Caterpillar onslaught not likely to be severe this year

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Although he usually doesn't like to make predictions, Brian Cross believes the Forest Tent Caterpillars won't be as numerous as they were last year.

"We expect there will be a significant drop in population but it's hard to say with any degree of precision," says the Ministry of Natural Resources' forest management supervisor.

For the past two years, many parts of the county have suffered from large outbreaks of the leaf-eating pests. At one point in early summer, dry roads became slippery as hundreds of the caterpillars tried to get to other trees.

Most trees bounced back, but there was concern about the damage—and unsightliness—caused by the pests.

"They build up to such an extent, they eventually cause a collapse in population," Cross says. "It's taken longer than expected (for the collapse to occur) but it's got to happen."

He stresses that some people get the Forest Tent Caterpillar mixed up with the Gypsy moth, another voracious leaf-eater. The latter has recently been found in the county, but in relatively small numbers. The county is taking part in a spray program this year to try to halt their spread.

anticipated—especially for those individuals who went for a low price—we have decided to eliminate Slave Day this year," Forgrave said in the letter requesting approval for new fundraising activities.

The graduates are suggesting a series of new activities to garner the necessary funding, including the following:

Rambo Run—Teacher Tim Davies has volunteered to be the target as students chase him through the bush behind the school—an advanced game of hide-and-seek where the chasers pay for the opportunity to catch the teacher.

Scooter Relay Race—For an entry fee, teams of students will race around the perimeter of the school on scooter boards.

Minnow Race—Students each buy a minnow which will take part in a race or series of races in a water tank. Prizes for the winner.

Cow Drop Contest—A plot of land will be marked off into sections—each of which is available for "purchase". A cow is then allowed to wander over this area, and the winner is the person who owns the plot of land on which the cow makes its first "deposit".

Trustees approved the new activities.

Lutterworth council may impose a new fee on seasonal trailers

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

Municipalities now have the option to impose an annual permit fee on seasonal trailers located in any campground for more than 90 days a year, Lutterworth Township council has learned.

On Tuesday's meeting, council considered a letter from the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation announcing that seasonal trailer units will be exempt from property assessment and taxation by the Ministry of Revenue.

This initiative will allow municipalities to impose a nominal fee of up to $50 per trailer each year. The fee is intended to allow seasonal campers to contribute to the cost of municipal services.

These seasonal units will not include mobile homes and other permanent structures.

"Our ministries have been working with the Ontario Private Campground Association and the Association of Municipalities of Ontario on this matter for some time," tourism minister Ken Black says in the letter.

"We believe the annual permit fee is the most equitable way to resolve the issue, applying equally to private and public campgrounds."

The fee will be collected by campground operators and remitted to the municipalities, and won't affect tourist campers who stay for less than 90 days.

Councillor Lisa Mercer said the initiative is "definitely something to look into."

"Many people have a trailer here and a trailer in Florida," said Councillor Bill Valentine. "It's not an unreasonable request to expect them to pay."

Council requested that Clerk Jeanne Simpson enquire for more information about the initiative.

POUNDS OF PLASTIC: Archie Stouffer school's third plastic bag recycling depot was a resounding success. Pitching in were, top from left, Andrew Graham and Rob Camelon; bottom, Matthew Heffer, Kevin Brezina.

CHARITY BEGINS AT SCHOOL: Minden residents deposited about 10 bags a day last week at Archie Stouffer Elementary School's clothing drive, a brainchild of Sarah Ladurantaye and Susan Carr.

Recycling day helps ASES students pitch in to save the environment

by SUSAN GROBER

Staff Reporter

MOST EVERYONE IS TRYING to do their part in helping cut down on waste, and an enthusiastic group of students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School is trying to make it easier for Minden residents.

On Friday, a group of kids set up a depot outside the school to collect plastic shopping bags for recycling.

And it was certainly a success. Also having gathered bags throughout the week, the students expected to collect more than 200 pounds of plastic bags, enough to fill a small pick-up truck. At the previous depot (this was the school's third), 187 pounds of plastic was collected.

With the help of Murray Clarke of CHANGE (County of Haliburton Advocates for a Naturally Good Environment), Grade 8 student Julie-Anne Adam, Grade 5 students Kevin Brezina, Rob Camelon and Matthew Heffer, and Grade 3 student Andrew Graham all pitched in for the effort.

They collected bags and turned them inside out to remove any paper sales receipts, which ruin the recycling process. Any colourful bags were diligently set aside for a project by master-weaver Wendy Bateman, who weaves the strips of plastic into heavy-duty shopping bags.

However, the recycling effort didn't end outside the school. Inside, Grade 5 students Sarah Ladurantaye and Susan Carr spent the week collecting boxes and bags of old clothes to be sent to the Lily Ann Haliburton Village.

People can always drop off any clothing at the Lily Ann (part of the 4Cs—Community Christian Concern Centre), said Susan. "But if you live in Minden, it's easier to bring it here."

The idea for this project came from Sarah. "One day I was wondering how I could help people. I thought of this, and then I talked my best friend, Susan, into it."

"I didn't think it would be so successful," said Susan.

"We had six garbage bags (filled with clothes) at least just on the Friday," said Sarah.

The students plan to hold another recycling day at the end of April.

New senior social worker has a diverse background

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

APPEARANCES TO THE CONTRARY, Haliburton is a lot like the Yorkshire mining city of Sheffield, says a man who's had to deal with social problems of residents in both places.

"Sheffield is made up of seven villages and that village mentality still remains," says Kenneth Munks, who became the Senior Social Worker at the Haliburton Children's Aid Society on Monday. "So it helped me understand this community. I feel quite comfortable here."

Describing himself as "a refugee from Thatcherism", Munks arrived in Haliburton a year ago to take the post of social worker. His promotion comes after a long search for the supervisor's position, which was left vacant after Bruce Watson moved.

But take note: "There's a difference between a Yorkshireman and an Englishman." A good sense of fun, for one.

When Munks and his family emigrated from Sheffield a couple of years ago, he brought with him more than his accent—which he does his best to tone down. (He also intersperses his sentences with "yeah?", a nicer sounding version of the Canadian "eh?".)

In his baggage was a resume of many years' experience in social work.

"Social services in England are centrally located so you can have one office that will oversee all social service centres," he explains. Therefore, it's not odd that in his 15-year career he did some family service work as well as managing units for difficult adolescents, a day care centre for people with mental illnesses, and a large centre for Alzheimer's patients. Other work experience includes probation services and dealing with families in crisis in a socially-deprived area of the city.

"It helps your social work knowledge and the skills are transferrable. It gives you a wider view of needs," he says of the benefits of such an approach.

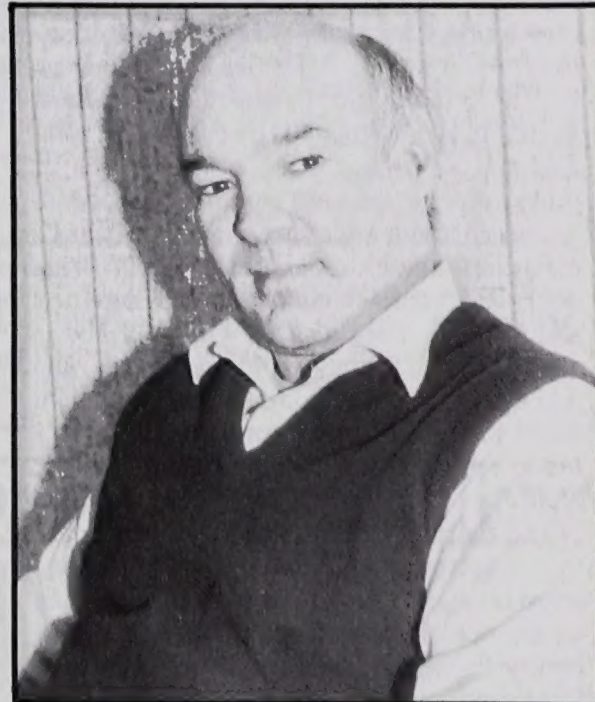

And even though managing an office is not new to him, he says his new Haliburton position is an opportunity for growth. "Every new post is a new challenge and it would be unfair if I didn't view it as such. I don't expect to be complacent."

He also intends to stay awhile. He and his wife, Jocelyn, and six-year-old daughter Samantha are living in Buckhorn at present, but when his promotion was announced, they began looking at Haliburton properties. "If you're going to invest in a position, you consider that when you accept the job."

It's all part of keeping an eye to the future. Munks says they decided to leave England because of Samantha. "The education system in England is starting to break down. I was aware in the early eighties that England was heading for economic problems. People thought we were a bit foolish but you're investing in your family."

The move wasn't easy. "The immigration process is very difficult. It took almost two years to work through the system, which is extremely time consuming and stressful."

Kenneth Munks of Children's Aid

"For people who think it's easy to get into Canada, I can assure them it isn't."

Once here, it was eight weeks before he could find a job. Then he was happy to get the post in Haliburton, even though the Highlands aren't quite the same as the Moorlands he used to like to hike across.

As senior social worker, Munks says one of his tasks will be to continue improving the image of the CAS. "We'd like anyone to contact us if there's anything they want to talk about or if they're having problems, without being afraid that we'll come and take their kids away."

A costly choice

There was some very good news for Sir Sandford Fleming College last week, when the Haliburton County Board of Education agreed to sell the Lakeview School property to the college for $390,000. The board's decision was a positive for at least two reasons. Firstly, it gives Sir Sandford a permanent facility in Haliburton, and that should help ensure that the college will continue to offer its programmes to the local community. Secondly, the sale is an important step in the board's effort to find a local solution to the growing crisis in school accommodation in Haliburton and Minden. The proceeds will be placed in a reserve fund for new building projects, and while the amount is comparatively small, it could provide some leverage in the board's bid to get additional capital funding from the Ministry of Education.

The shortage of adequate classroom space in Haliburton and Minden is the most serious issue facing the board of education. Finding an appropriate solution will challenge trustees' ability to weigh the demands of educating local children against the always volatile issue of taxation. In the end, the scales will have to tip toward building new classrooms, even if the tax consequences are heavy.

At the moment, trustees haven't entirely abandoned hope that the Ministry of Education will provide capital funding to build enough classroom space to meet the county's needs for the next few years at least. Education Minister Sean Conway will visit the county this Friday to get a first hand look at the problem, and at the short term steps the board has taken to deal with them. Making the minister familiar with the local problem may help the board in its dealings with Queen's Park, but it won't provide instant solutions. Population growth is causing overcrowding and a proliferation of portable classrooms in dozens of communities throughout the province, and the Ministry has already committed its capital allocations for the next 10 years, although priorities can always be changed. Given the current climate in government spending, however, there is little likelihood the province will offer the board much help in the near future. And that means the community will have to dig deeper in its collective pockets to pay for new classrooms.

If the issue was merely dollars, the board might be tempted to purchase more portable classrooms. But that would be false economy, because portables are a poor substitute for proper facilities. In the end, the only acceptable solution is to add classrooms to J.D. Hodgson Elementary and Archie Stouffer Elementary, using funds from the sale of the Lakeview Centre and Victoria Street School, which is a candidate for closure and likely to bring a substantial sum if it is sold for other public or private uses. The balance will have to be met by long term debentures, and debt serviced by local taxpayers.

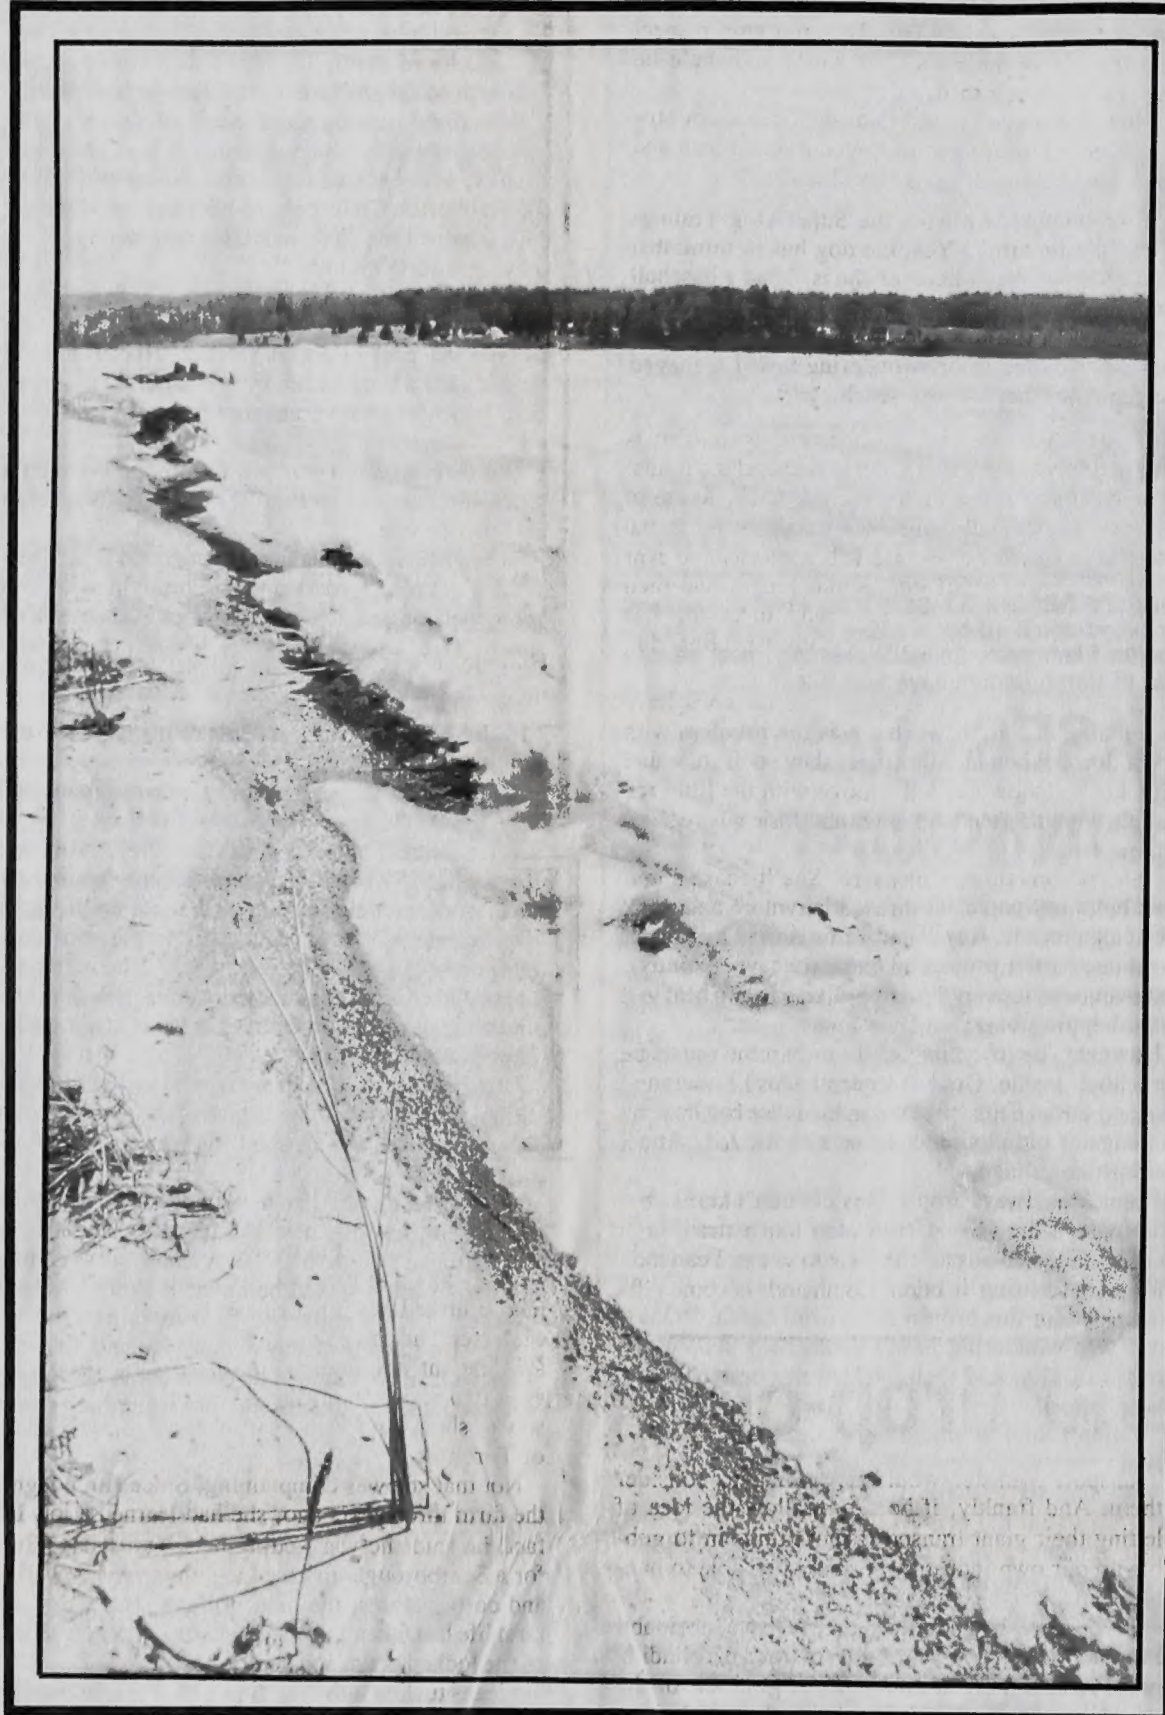

How long does the board have before it must act? A year or two at most — a year or two that must be taken up with devising not the least expensive solutions, but ones that will best meet the needs of a growing number of local students.

Who should pay

It was frustrating enough that the Ministry of Health refused to fund a continuing care unit at Haliburton Hospital despite irrefutable evidence that the facility was needed. It is simply unconscionable that funds donated in good faith by the community may now have to be used to help pay the architects' fees.

The costs incurred for the project so far stand at $380,000, of which $326,000 is owed to the architects. Had the building proceeded, these costs would have been included in the overall project cost, one third of which was to be met by local contributions.

The community understood it would have to share costs in that proportion, and was prepared to do so. But it would have received something tangible for its efforts and its generosity. When the Ministry of Health reneged on its commitment to the project, the money spent in good faith and with the Ministry's encouragement, to complete detailed drawings for the addition, became money wasted. The Ministry of Health should meet the cost, since it is they, not local people, who refused to honour their commitment.

Scars inflicted by indifference

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

To quote from a January 31 letter, "The social and emotional wellbeing of children and families is not a priority for the present government of Ontario" is to tell my own life's story as a Crown ward "owned" by the powerful Metro Toronto Children's Aid whose rude treatment and reluctance to comply with the Adoption Disclosure Act have left scars when I sought healing for those already inflicted by their arrogant indifference.

Again, I quote the letter writer who states "I may have left the impression that the Peterborough Area Office of the Ministry of Community and Social Services is staffed by uncaring and insensitive people." Bingo! That is just how my husband and I as well as other members of the family found them to be. The time and money that was wasted pestering people seemed to be an effort to justify unnecessary jobs, use of the ample funds received from taxes and United Way as well as a simple exercise in power similar to what must exist in a police state, the old or the sick not being exempt by social workers determined to have their own way at any cost.

Heading her column with the words "Fortitude and resilience needed in fight", the Northern Lights lady goes on to describe winning a war because of our gutsy determination to live in a free world. We are in a war to save the environment, help families in crisis and rectify the wrongs done to battered children and abused women along with the disappearing wildlife, dying lakes and trees.

The same government that has multi-million dollars to force a second language on people who had the mistaken notion they were living in a democratic society tells adoptees that they simply don't have the funds to comply with the law requiring that non-identifying information be released to adults (I was born in February of 1939) who haven't been entitled to any health records whatsoever, their religious or ethnic background or even a birth certificate. It took several years, hiring an attorney, appealing to my doctor and MP along with countless letters, visits and telephone calls before I obtained some general background information; always the same excuse, "We need more money from the government to proceed."

At the same time social workers harassed our family as if they had all the time and money in the world, their main purpose in life being to meddle in other people's lives until health, happiness, peace of mind and a successful marriage become things of the past. What's that old saying? "A little power corrupts" and the Department of Social Services needs its power curbed along with the reminder that they should treat others the way they themselves would like to be treated, which means without intimidating tactics and outright bullying.

Abortion a painful experience

To the Editor:

Mr. H. Michael Collins' inference that abortion is both physically and psychologically safe because of the findings of one periodical, prestigious, or otherwise, flies in the face of other statistics and my own experience at the grass roots level. For armchair philosophers removed from the concrete realities of the pain and disturbance experienced by those women and men who find it exceedingly difficult to cope with the circumstances of their abortion experience, trotting out statistics and philosophizing may simply be an academic exercise. To those dealing with post abortion syndrome it is real pain, real guilt, real regret—no matter what

"statistics" or The Scientific American might have to say.

What are the psychological risks of abortion? The British Medical Journal (whether or not it is more prestigious), after reviewing existing psychological research on abortion, has noted that "almost all those who terminated feel guilt and depression" for at least a brief period of time, and other research has found that "about half of all abortion patients experienced psychological disturbances lasting at least 8 weeks. These problems included guilt feelings, nervous symptoms, sleeplessness, and feelings of regret."

Long term studies have found that 10-30 percent

THEY SAY THAT WHEN one starts looking back instead of forward that it is the first sign of old age creeping up on you. I believe this is true, but there are times when it is good to take a look back and get a nostalgic view of some of the events which took place a few years ago. Such is the case with the Haliburton Figure Skating Club which will be celebrating its 50th Anniversary when staging its annual Figure Skating Carnival this coming Sunday afternoon, April 8th at the Arena in Haliburton starting at 2:00 p.m. This year they will be taking a trip down memory lane with the presentation of "Skating Through The Years". When we look back over the years we remember all those wonderful people who gave hours of their time and talents so that the young people of the community would have the opportunity to take part in the Figure Skating lessons. It's unfortunate that we can't recognize each and every person who has contributed to the club during this past 50 years. When I think back there is one Skating Carnival that stands out in my mind. On this particular occasion, two of the Haliburton ladies who were heavily involved in the operation of the club were Maxine Curry and the late Alice Robertson. These two ladies, along with many others, had prepared for weeks to insure that the carnival was going to be a success. I can still remember how disappointed they were when the big night finally arrived. In those days the Old Haliburton Arena, which was starting to show its age, was without the luxury of the modern day artificial ice and the Zamboni ice-making machine. It was natural ice and on this particular day when the sun shone brightly on the tin roof, the ice surface down below was covered with water. During the afternoon the ice surface was mopped up in hopes of getting rid of most of the water so that when the sun went down the ice could tighten up. I can remember standing behind the town hall with members of the Haliburton Citizens Band who were wondering what would be the best way to reach the arena door. The Ball field area was covered with water and a band member who could be playing with the band suggested that we rent a boat to get to our destination. I can also remember arriving at the arena to see Alice and Maxine join the young skaters who were wondering at the time if the show would go on. To the skaters and to all those who will be working behind the scenes this Sunday we say the best of luck as you skate through the years. We are proud of the many great skaters in the club today and to those who skated here in the past.

Last month Mr. Patrick Brennan of Haliburton was in for a pleasant surprise when he scratched away at his Provincial special bonus ticket at Jug City. He was the winner of a brand new Chevrolet Lumina, but has since decided to accept $20,000 in cash instead.

When we start to think about making donations to an organization or a club, it is my opinion that a donation to the Canadian Cancer Society is a must and should be put right up there at the top of our list. Cancer as we all know, ranks with heart disease as the number one and two killers in Canada today.

I have been asked to announce that "Olivet to Calvary", a Cantata for Good Friday written by J.H. Maunder, will be presented by St. George's Choir, directed by organist Bill Gliddon on Good Friday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. at St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton.

According to the latest edition of the Hockey News, Brian Leetch's season-ending ankle injury at Toronto on March 14 brought back bad memories for centre Bernie Nicholls of the New York Rangers. "What a fluke injury, what a shame," Nicholls said. "I never felt good about playing in this place (Maple Leaf Gardens). He (Leetch) went down about 10 feet from where Charlie Simmer broke his leg (March 2, 1981) in my rookie year. "The injury meant that James Patrick, who is by no means a stranger to Haliburton will be asked to pick up the slack."

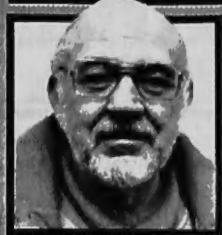

I awoke early one day last week and as I lay in bed thinking about getting up and going to work, my thoughts turned to the Academy Awards which were presented on the previous evening. I wondered if by chance I could put the names of the five films that had been nominated as the best films of the year together to see if it made any sense. Here is what I came up with. Even though I wasn't Born On The Fourth of July, I was Driving Miss Daisy, with My Left Foot through the Field of Dreams to see the movie Dead Poet's Society.

When the Haliburton Minor Tykes skate onto the ice at 10:00 a.m. this coming Saturday to play Minden, the tradition will continue and the playing of the Glen Dart Memorial Tournament will be underway for the 38th time. Six games are on the menu and they will all be played at the arena in Haliburton.

POINTS OF VIEW

Dog trainer learns new tricks

AS OTHERS SEE IT

BOB GIULIANO

IT IS OFTEN SAID that owners and their pets look alike or have the same temperament. On my walks I see folks who do look like their dogs. In a sudden moment of reflection I scrutinized this dog of mine! Are we alike?

I've always had a dog. Since I was a boy my house has had some kind of dog in it. We had other animals too, especially when the kids were growing up, but we've always had a dog too.

This dog is the Jewish presence in my house. She is part spaniel and part beagle. Therefore a "Speagle". After the name, there's nothing particularly Jewish about her, which is Jewish, I guess.

I got her seven years ago. She chose me. The organist at our church brought her in and she followed me everywhere I went. So I took her home. This began a most difficult relationship.

Have you ever tried to train a beagle? Beagles are the most stubborn minded, willful, manipulative beasts on the earth. Mix that with a spastic, nervous, high strung spaniel and you've got your hands full.

My mom was English, my dad was Italian. No connection.

When I took Josie home Betty packed her bags and gave me one week to train her (Josie) or she (Betty) would leave. Beagles believe the environment is naturally a Beagle's environment and everyone must adjust accordingly. Spaniels believe that everyone who comes into the house has come to visit them and pay attention to their needs to be petted and scratched and fed.

This dog was going to be hard to train. None of your "rub the nose in it and pitch the mutt out the door" was going to have any effect. After the whole house was covered with newspapers and we hadn't slept for the howling in the kitchen, I went to the library for the "Super Dog Training Book".

I was embarrassed to have to resort to a book. I had trained many dogs, but this Josie, wide-eyed and wiggly tailed, flapping long ears and limitless energy required special strategy.

The book made it clear that the dog had to accept the fact that it lived in a human environment and would have to adjust accordingly. The author recognized that Speagles required extra schooling and he gave me the clue that began turning things around: Tobasco sauce! Yes, that little red bottle with the green cap. That hot, hot sauce became clue number one that kept the wife at home, put the newspapers at the door and ended the attempt of Josie to climb the glass patio door.

Tobasco, three or four drops (more if you're mad) on the tongue and in a few days you gain respect and the dog decides it's your world and she'd be happier adjusting to it.

Now Beagles don't just capitulate. They know how to get out of your sight or beyond your reach and then take charge of your world again.

Clue number two from the Super Dog Trainer: The "plastic arm"! Yes, the dog has to think that you can reach her wherever she is. I had a baseball and a good aim. Sometimes, after licking her wounds I would catch Josie studying me, her chin between her paws on the floor, wondering how I managed to reach her beyond my reach.

To this very day her stubborn temperament is ready to resist, take charge, or go beyond the limits. She has learned the "plastic dog" trick. Made to lie down, especially when we have guests, in the doorway or by my chair, she will gradually and ever so slowly stretch out longer and longer and then slowly shrink from the hind end until she has slithered over to be petted by unsuspecting dog lovers.

If the kids had been at home I would never have been able to train her. That was the problem with past dogs. When kids do come, they spoil Josie and it takes a "show and tell" move with the little red bottle with the green cap to remind Josie where she's come from.

She is sometimes a pleasure. She'll chase a tennis ball until you can't throw it anymore and think that all tennis balls are hers. (This caused a near riot one day as Betty walked her by the tennis courts). She loves to jump off the dock like a flying bird and crash into the lake and she loves to walk.

I think she loves me but I am careful not to be too affectionate. Kind and stern keeps her safe and comfortable in this world. She loves me because my commands protect and help her be civilized and not so self-centred.

Am I like her? Or vice versa? I don't know, but I do know that I have always felt like a stranger in a strange world and love the one to whom I can look for guidance and direction. Commands become gifts to Josie and me.

Pic of the Past

Haliburton's Figure Skating Club is preparing for its annual carnival, which will celebrate not only the accomplishments of present day skaters, but the long tradition of skating carnivals which have delighted so many local people. These smiling skaters were getting ready for the carnival in 1978. Do you recognize any of them?

If her mother could see her now

DOWN OUR ROAD

SHARON LYNCH

IF MY POOR MOTHER COULD SEE me now!" Nora thought, trucking through the mud on her way to the hen house. "She'd turn over in her grave for sure." The mud squished under her rubber boots, sucking with each step and the smell of manure was rich in the air. She entered the hen house and scooped up the eggs two at a time, pushing the odd hen out of the way as she went. It was a far cry from the city lights of Toronto.

Not that she was complaining. Since Jim bought the farm three years ago, she had learned a lot. In fact, he said she was getting better everyday. But for a Scarborough girl used to subways, sidewalks and corner stores, the mud, toil and frustration of farm life had taken some getting used to. She laughed as she looked down at her 'step-ins' coated in muck, her jeans tucked into their tops and Jim's old jacket hanging limp as a flag down to her knees. Not exactly a fashion plate.

But she loved it. Especially on mornings like this with the promise of new life in the awakening earth. Birds in all the trees, a warm spring haze hanging over the bush and pussy willows just starting to appear down by the pond. Once the mud went, they'd be able to get more done outside. Nora eyed the barnyard in all its spring splendor.

A winter of accumulated manure rose like a mountain where Jim and the boys had shovelled it out of the stalls the past five or six months. The whole yard was awash with a pungent goopy mass, some mud mixed with it, but not much. Thank goodness her sense of smell had toughened these last three years or the smell would have knocked her over. Then something caught her eye.

Nora walked over to the fence and looked more closely. Not sure of what she saw, she peered across the soft, smelly ground. It looked like a bump, a hump, no—a snout! "What the -", she began to herself, thinking out loud. Why, it was a snout; a calf's to be more accurate. One of the cows must have dropped it right there in the barnyard, and the poor thing was all but buried in almost a foot of liquid manure. It would suffocate if it stayed there much longer. Not even speculating on which cow it belonged to, Nora had only one thought. That calf had to get out of there and fast. Jim and the boys were still in Bancroft and not due back until close to noon. So it was up to Nora.

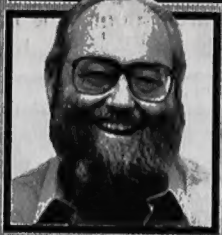

She climbed over the fence but as soon as her foot hit the manure, it sunk to the top of her boot. It was even thicker over where the calf was because the ground was lower and everything drained down into that corner of the barnyard. Nora couldn't see its nose now. It must have rolled over or something, so she knew there was no time to lose.

Walking to it was out of the question. Stretching out on her stomach, Nora started crawling along on

AT THE END of last year, I had some comments on the Ontario's Ministry of Transport and Communications authorization of monster trucks on our roads... and with longer ones to come.

We've just returned from a trip in our motor home, where we have had some firsthand experience with what we're going to be up against. It is something else to have one of those double-trailer trains roar by you at highway speeds in the driving rain. Fortunately, we didn't come across any of the triple trailers.

I know how difficult it is for many Canadians to acknowledge their acceptance of ideas that have been first seen or more fully implemented in the United States — although they absorb so many of them in their everyday life.

On this trip, I saw and heard about a few things that I think Ontario could benefit from, if the Transport Minister would be willing to consider them. And frankly, if he can swallow the idea of letting their giant transport truck-trains in to gobble up our own industry, he should be able to handle some more useful ones.

If you travel on Ontario roads, you have, no doubt, had the occasion — be it fog or rain or blinding headlights coming at you — to be grateful for the white line that is provided to define the road's edge on most highway curves.

Consider the fact that, wherever you travel in the United States, there is a white line like that, not just on curves, but along virtually every foot of every highway that you travel. Yes, that includes states like Michigan and New York that get lots of snow. They still save many lives, I'm sure, during the majority of the year, when there's no snow covering them.

Coupled with this clearly-defined road edge, are a combination of yellow lines and reflectors down the middle of the roads. The yellow lines seem to have a reflectant in it to aid at night, and the little two-by-four inch reflectors that are attached to the pavement every twenty-five feet or so clearly define lanes under even the worst conditions.

These reflectors stick up maybe half an inch and can be seen from both sides. They are yellow to match the centre stripes, but come in red for use

Avoiding a point of no return

NORTHERN LIGHTS

VIRGINIA MUENZEL

EARTHDAY IS COMING! You know, we really have something to celebrate. Although it's not the fact that old Mother Earth is still here in spite of all we've done to her. The celebration concerns the fact that so far, earth still supplies an atmosphere, a food supply, and relatively drinkable water that will support the human race. And that is rather amazing, considering how diligently those very same creatures are working at their own destruction.

Of course, if we persist, eventually we'll reach that point of no return, and become just another extinct species. The earth will still keep turning around the sun. She, and even some of her harder inhabitants will even recover from our poisonous dose, and survive quite nicely, thanks, without 'the smartest of the creatures'.

So, on April 22, let's celebrate the fact that we still have the choice to clean up our act for our children and grandchildren's sakes. We could still choose to get back to basics, and lose some of the materialistic attitudes that are getting us into so much trouble. We can't eat, drink or breathe all those gadgets we are so hung up on.

Earthday is coming! Let's celebrate by making a promise to consider long-term thinking. How does what you waste today affect your children's future? What can you and your family do to break some harmful habits? You could make new choices.

You could choose to do all or some of the following:

You could find some large boxes or other containers. Label them cans, bottles, newspapers. Don't nest aluminum cans inside tin cans. Rinse cans well and place lids inside the can. Do not flatten cans as this makes it difficult for aluminum and steel to be mechanically separated.

Rinse bottles and jars and remove lids and caps.

Separate green from clear bottles. Do NOT include china ware, earthenware, porcelain, clay pots, pyrex, mirrors, light bulbs, windows or crystal as they have different chemical compositions and CAN-NOT be recycled with bottles.

Your newspaper box is just that; newspapers only. NO MAGAZINES! Most of them have a finish that is not recyclable at this time.

If you would like to enrich your flower or vegetable gardens without poisons, you could begin a simple mulch pile. There is a compost book available through the C.H.A.N.G.E. group. To get a large amount of wet waste out of your garbage, you could begin to use a mulch bucket. Find a container with a tight lid that you can put under your sink. In it you can put all fruit and vegetable wastes (peels, cores, etc.), coffee grounds, tea leaves, stale bread, etc. Do NOT put leftover meats, fat or bones in this bucket. You can simply empty this bucket into your compost heap as often as necessary. Rinse the bucket with a mixture of water, vinegar and baking soda to remove any strong odors.

Those are the basics of recycling. You and your families could choose to do any or all of them as a commitment to yourself and your children's futures.

There's one more very important thing that you can do. Write a letter to your municipal, as well as your county councils. Let them know that you, as a rate-payer of the community, expect them to put more effort into the recycling process. Request that they do these three things:

1) Install compartmental dumpsters in every landfill sight, with CLEARLY MARKED instructions for recycling.

2) Hire a person to supervise and INSTRUCT people on the proper procedures for recycling.

3) Immediately arrange for a regular, twice a year, hazardous waste collection so that no more toxic wastes turn up in our dump sites.

You elected these officials. Your taxes pay them; you ARE allowed to tell them what you want.

Have a wonderfully clean Earthday. When you awaken, go outside and take a deep breath. If it doesn't make you cough, thank God, and hopefully, your own efforts. Promise yourself and your family to do all you can to keep it that way.

It's got to start in our own backyards.

More care needed in decisions

MORE LETTERS FROM ECHO READERS...

of abortion patients experience serious "long-term psychiatric problems". In a five year study, 25 percent of women who had undergone abortion surgery sought out psychiatric care, versus 3 percent of women with no prior abortions, and another study has found that psychiatric disorders are 40 percent more common among women who had aborted.

Another researcher writes, "It is important to note that the young women in our study have only a 50 percent chance of getting over the abortion experience within five to seven months. Among those women who experienced difficulties... none of those whom we were able to see again at 14 months post-abortion had improved."

Relationships suffered following abortion. In one study, (and there are many) "only 2 of 11 women were continuing their relationship with the same boyfriend when seen five to seven months post-abortion." In another, one-third of married couples "experienced separations during the pregnancy/abortion period."

A number of professionals have found that grief and regret following abortion is sometimes more severe on the anniversary of either the projected date of birth or the date of the abortion itself. As one study remarked, "another frequently observed phenomenon following selective abortion may be described as a 'flashback' effect, which may persist for many months or even years after the procedure. It is usually triggered by objects or events related to childbearing or babies."

We do well to take the advice of those who recommend greater care in decision making. One physician, Dr. Blumberg, an obstetrician and gynecologist quoted above, writes that "an intelligent decision requires the input of all the available data, and ignorance of the psychological aspects of selective abortions precludes a fully informed decision."

Therefore, Mr. Collins' misplaced trust in the infallibility of the Scientific American's statement that "Finally they conclude by stating that not only is abortion a medically safe procedure, but we know that it is also psychologically safe" is lamentable. Post abortion syndrome is a fact and reality. Talk to those women and men trying to cope. Try talking to those women faced with the 'tragedy' (their words), and tell them it is only make believe; that the months, maybe years, of depression and grief are a figment of their imagination. Wave all the prestigious scientific utterances in the world in front of their faces—then see if that will lessen the grief, somehow undo the pain, erase the memory!

Yours sincerely,

SPORTS

SAVOURING SUCCESS: Sunday was a happy day for Haliburton's Keith Jackson Real Estate PeeWees. For the second year in a row they won the All-Ontario championship in their division defeating Teeswater four

PeeWees don't fool around; clinch All-Ontario 'DD' title

It was no April Fool's joke when the Keith Jackson Real Estate PeeWees clinched the OMHA All-Ontario 'DD' title on Sunday.

Saturday was the scene of Haliburton's third win of the series. They convincingly beat the Teeswater club by a 10-4 score.

Kevin Morissette led the way with a hat trick while Andy Billings, Mark Stamp and Mark Morissette each had a pair. Jonathon Bishop rounded off the scoring assisted by Derek Glendinning and Stamp. Tim Keefer, Curtis Bain, Jackie Morrison and Jeff Teatro all picked up assists on the goals while Peter Brohman kept the opponents to four goals.

Sunday the locals could taste the thrill of a victory as they came out hard and wound up on the top in a 8-2 final.

This win gave the PeeWees their second championship in as many years—a feat never before accomplished by a Haliburton team. Mark Morissette had three goals while brother Kevin picked up a goal and four assists. Jonathon Bishop scored twice assisted by Mark Stamp and Derek Glendinning. Jeff Teatro and Jackie Morrison added a goal each from the blueline while Tim Keefer, Curtis Bain and Andy Billings added the defensive skills to hold the Teeswater club to two goals.

Peter Brohman was superb in goal, while Brock Glendinning who was instrumental in helping the club defeat Frankford—added the verbal support from the bench.

The coaches and manager would like to thank all of the boys for their never tiring effort, the parents for the commitment they made, and the people of this community for the support shown to this club on the way to victory.

Tri-County semi-finals no picnic

Haliburton's Tri-County PeeWees have taken the lead in their championship series against Sunderland.

The semi-finals were no picnic. Game 4 of that series against Millbrook ended in a tie with each team scoring once, Colin Morrison from Billy Doz for Haliburton, and Chris Mitchell from Jim Clegg for Millbrook. This was the third tie game in the series and it gave Haliburton the lead in points 5 to 3, with the first team reaching 6 points going to the final's against Sunderland.

Game 5 ended any doubt as to who would win the right to be in the final's as Haliburton trounced their opponents 6-1.

Colin Morrison got the hat-trick, assisted by Mike Hartwick on two of the goals and Johnny Hewson on the other. Jeff Miscio netted two, assisted by Hewson on one and Jamie McMahon on his second. Jamie McMahon also scored one with yet another assist going to John Hewson.

The lone Millbrook goal was scored by Mike Gilmore from Jim Clegg.

Sunderland hosted and won the first game of the finals on March 24 since this series was to be decided on the 6-point system, it gave Sunderland a 2-0 lead in points over Haliburton. It was a very close game, ending with a score of 2-1. Both Sunderland goals were scored by Randy Benstead, assisted by Vince and Andy Shewen.

scoring for Haliburton was Colin Morrison assisted by Johnny Hewson.

Bantams need win for playoffs

Haliburton's Sport Stop Tri County Bantams must win this Wednesday night in Manvers to keep their playoff hopes alive. The local boys are behind three games to two in the best of seven championship.

The Bantams lost the series opener on the road on March 23 in a hard fought, 2-1 battle. Mike Gunning notched the lone goal for Haliburton. They hosted Manvers at the Dysart arena on March 25 and once again ended up on the low end of the scoreboard, as Mike Gunning again scored the only Haliburton goal in a 3-1 loss.

The series resumed over the weekend, with a heavy, three game schedule that saw Haliburton stage a comeback to keep their hopes alive. On Friday night the teams met in Haliburton and the Sport Stop boys skated to a 4-2 win. Chad Bain and Mike Gunning each had two goal nights to earn the victory.

The trip to Manvers the next day didn't take away any of Haliburton's momentum. This time it was Paul Dovell and Colin Sisson who got the offensive

Curling ends but fun continues

by HILARY LANSDOWNE

The Highland Mixed Bonspiel, held here last weekend, was the last function of the season. A few play-off games remain to be played and all results will be mentioned in next week's column.

Edith Hoxie again played perfect hostess/organizer to twenty mixed teams on the weekend and the winning teams are featured elsewhere in this week's Echo. Our thanks to the kitchen staff for excellent refreshments and Saturday night's dinner: Don Cameron for his help in the bar and Harry for the keen ice.

Among the sponsors were Haliburton Lumber, Black's Home Hardware, Country Rose, Dawson Insurance, Jasco Drugmart, Carnarvon Lumber, Dawson Gray and Curry Motors. We appreciate the donations from the community which make these events possible.

On Wednesday April 6 (today) there will be a Pot Luck Supper and Family Skating at the club before the ice is taken out later in the week. All members and their families are welcome any time after 6 p.m. Tickets for the April 20 banquet will be on sale at the club that evening. No tickets will be available after April 13.

The General Meeting for the Club scheduled for April 9 will now be held in the fall, due to conflicting schedules of some members of the Executive. At that time the Executive for the coming year will be elected. Watch for the date of this important meeting!!! There will be discussion on some important decisions to be made concerning schedules and fee structure. If you aren't there you can't give your input !!

Curling season closes on very colourful note

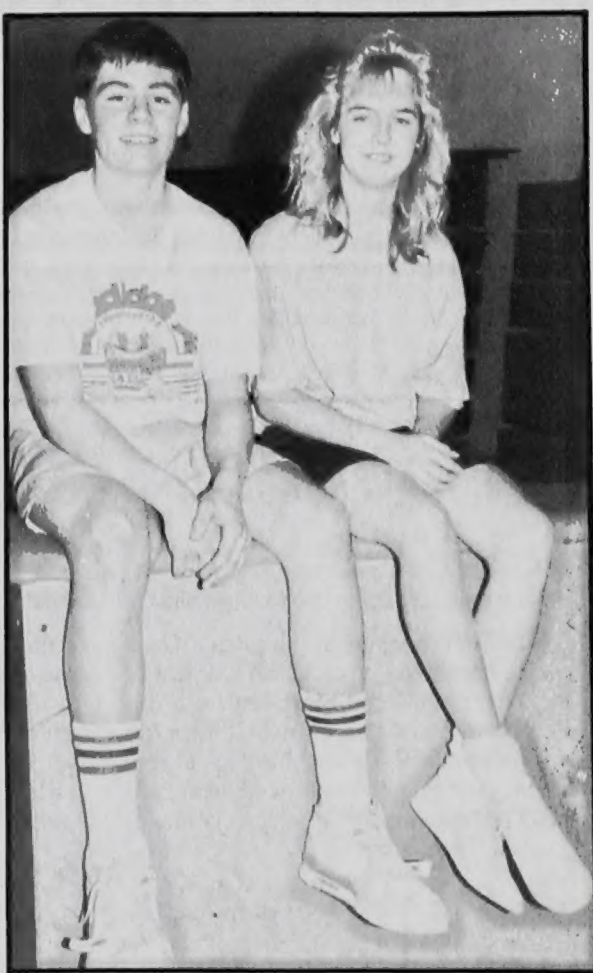

by JIM HOLMES

The 89-90 curling season closed on a more colourful note than the season began. How? When? Why? With a little imagination and a lot of curling club volunteer support.

Early in the season, when the coming events were still in the planning stages, curling club volunteer crews started off by painting the rink floor with a touch of imagination and colour a new green centre ice. In the gallery area, senior curler volunteers Keith Hill and Doug Sealey built new display shelves for the many trophies won by the club. An "in the pink" decor complete with new carpeting and furniture made the old locker room atmosphere in the ladies lounge disappear.

Mysteriously, posters started to appear, first imbedded in the ice, then over the long and chilly winter months on the walls of the rink. (The poster/emblems represent visiting clubs). Brainchild of Jim Holmes, senior club president, the challenge was taken up by Jim Johnston of Haliburton Lake, senior club volunteer. The club provided Jim with sheets of tile board, a few cans of enamel and visiting club pins measuring 1 inch x 1-1/2 inch. Jim met the challenge, turning his cottage into a studio 3 mornings a week and producing 12 posters measuring 4' x 4'. These posters are very professional due to Jim's 40 year experience in the graphic arts.

So much goes into the success of a club and not all the volunteer hours are visible to the eye. Don and John Cameron's cheery disposition and management of the libation facility was a real plus for the club this year as well.

TOP TUMBLERS: J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School students Ted O'Connell and Tammy Moore are reaching for the top in Gymnastics. After completing seven challenges on the mats and three on the box-horse, the pair are in the top level four designated by the Ontario Gymnastics Federation.

Skaters to shine when club holds Birthday Celebration

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

IN THE EYES of every young girl and boy taking part in this Sunday's figure skating carnival, the Dysart arena will take on a magical glow. Part of this will be attributed to the special lights and razzle dazzle of costumes, but more importantly, the glow will come from within.

This is their time to shine. "What's the use of working all year if you don't have an outlet to show off what you've learned?" asks Mary Donovan, one of the club's two coaches. "Especially for the test skaters, it's a fun way to put together everything they've learned and they don't have to worry about judging."

"I like it because the parents can feel proud of their child," adds Angela Bilodeau, the other coach.

Angela Bilodeau, centre, coaches Kristen Schakelaar, Shannon McKechnie

"To me it's exciting, it's a big production," says Nedeau Bull, the carnival chairperson.

Of course, it's the ones who can't skate who steal the show; the youngest members whose legs are made of jelly and feel proud if they can skate/walk to the other end of the arena.

But the carnival is also a big event for the coaches, who've spent hours and hours on the ice, working with the young skaters.

"I'm really rewarded when the kids improve and enjoy what I'm teaching them and I see results," says Ms. Donovan, after last Thursday's practice.

"I think the children should have fun doing what they do," adds Mrs. Bilodeau. "My daughter likes skating and I want her to have fun doing it."

While most young girls get into skating because they dream of being "balletinas on ice", there's a lot more to figure skating than looking pretty.

"It's a combination of so many sports in one," enthuses Ms. Donovan, a retired professional skater. "You've got interpretation to music, dancing—whether it's jazz or ballet, body control because of the figures which develop co-ordination, and you need a lot of strength. It's very physically demanding because it's concentrated activity. And skating teaches discipline, how to deal with pressure, and independence because you have to push yourself."

She first wanted to become a skater when she sat in the arena watching the girls who took to the ice after her brothers' hockey games. "My mom thought I'd quit after a year and much to her pocketbook's dismay, I didn't."

Working her way up the test program, Ms. Donovan eventually turned professional in Toronto. Skating was her life—quite literally. "I gave up most of my social life for skating so it's really nice not to just throw away a skill when you've worked so hard to get. Now I work full-time and teach four nights a week but in rural areas like this it's difficult to get qualified pros. There's a need there and I feel I should fill it. Because they want to learn, I want to teach them."

Both Mrs. Bilodeau and Mrs. Bull were taken to figure skating by their mothers (who are "more subtle" than hockey fathers.) Both enjoyed it, taking part in the Haliburton Carnivals, but unlike Ms. Donovan, decided not to pursue it as a career.

"As you get older, the girls get carried away with other things," Mrs. Bilodeau says. She went to college and because she didn't know anybody there—and was shy—dropped out of skating. Now she's back in because of her daughter, and Ms. Donovan credits her and Mrs. Bull for doing the lion's share of the organization of the carnival.

'Because they want to learn, I want to teach them,' says Mary Donovan, a former professional skater who now coaches young skaters, such as Ainsley Heyes, Katie Campbell and Sarah McMahon.

The carnival will be a bit different this year. It will offer its twirls and sequins, but this year, the emphasis will be on the family, and nostalgia.

Although no one is 100 per cent certain, it's believed the club was started 50 years ago. One of the first coaches was Miss Church, whose dedication was evident in the carnivals.

To celebrate those 50 years of talent and entertainment, this year's carnival is called Through the Years... A Birthday Celebration. They've gone through all the old programs and asked back all of the participants in carnivals in years gone by.

A few of them are too shy to take to the spotlight again, but some alumni have agreed to perform. For instance, Scott LaRue always was Jack Frost when he was a boy, and on Sunday he will be appearing with children Tran, Chantelle, Noelle and Danielle. His wife, Emily, who's a club past president, will also be taking part.

"Last year's carnival was the biggest and most expressive, so this year's is simpler," says Mrs. Bull. The first half will follow the "birthday party theme and remembering when you were a child". As many older skaters as possible will take part and in the second half they'll skate through the decades. After the carnival, everyone is invited upstairs for birthday cake and refreshments.

All of this starts at 2 p.m. on Sunday—and be ready for a little magic.

Glen Dart tourney takes to the ice

by CREIGHTON FEIR

Get set, get ready and let's all go to the annual Glen Dart House League Tournament which will be held at the arena in Haliburton this coming Saturday, April 7. The tradition will continue when the Haliburton Minor Tykes take to the ice at 10:00 a.m. to meet Minden in the first of six contests to open the 38th annual hockey tournament. Teams from the Haliburton Minor Hockey League have the opportunity of inviting out-of-town teams to face them in this annual hockey classic. The sixth and final game is scheduled to be played at 4:15 p.m.

Many local people will remember the very first Glen Dart Tournament back in 1951 when the arena was packed to capacity with young and old alike who turned out the cheer on their young favourites. Enthusiasm ran very high with every game played. Bob MacNaull, who has been chairman of the tournament for the past several years and who has given freely of his time along with others, told me this week that this year's event should showcase some great hockey games. During the first few years of the tournament it was standing room only at the arena and fans lined up outside the main entrance long before the first game was every played to purchase their tickets. I can also remember how close and thrilling most of those games turned out to be and especially the final games which always featured two outstanding Midget teams from Haliburton county. Many of these games went into overtime. Many of these players later played Junior hockey, two went on to the National Hockey League while others played semi pro hockey in Canada and the United States.

For many oldtimers, the name Glen Dart brings back many fond memories of those glorious years when the Huskies reigned supreme and championships were common. With these memories one cannot help but recall the name of Glen Dart and the skills he possessed both on and off the ice in the short period of time that he was with us.

Bimmy Dart, as he was known, was an avid hockey player, playing his minor hockey in Haliburton. Bimmy played for many teams and was given the opportunity to try out for the now defunct Toronto Native Sons of the O.H.A. Junior "A" League. Glen made the team and the management was high on his ability as a hockey player. But his first love, his native Haliburton where he was born and grew up, came first and he returned home to work in his father's bakery which was located where Mike's Mike now stands.

During the war Glen was a member of the Royal Canadian Air Force and after the war was over Glen returned to Haliburton and joined up with the Haliburton Huskies. He accepted the job as recreation director with the Municipality of Dysart et al and at the same time coached and instructed many youngsters.

Glen left us in 1951 at the age of 31, but he left behind a legend of happiness, championships, and above all his humanitarian acts as a hockey player, a gentleman and a loving son, husband and father. His wife Nellie died in 1982. Glen and Nellie are survived by one son Roger of Haliburton.

These are some of the reasons why there is a Glen Dart Memorial on Saturday to commemorate the memory of a hockey great and a gentleman.

When the puck is dropped many in attendance will also remember the first Glen Dart Committee of Ron Curry, Berkeley Feir, Joe Iles, Fred Neimann, Frank Anderson and Albert LaRue who spent many hours each and every year making plans and organizing the tournament. Referees and linesmen had to be contacted to handle the games, crests and trophies had to be ordered, preparation for lunch following each game had to be prepared and all teams had to be ready to take to the ice for their scheduled game. Only one member of that original committee is still living and that is Joe Iles who retired from Curry Motors last Friday.

To all young participants in the 38th annual tournament we would like to offer this little bit of advice. "You will not be remembered by the score, but by how you played the game." Good luck.

One of Haliburton's most well-known hockey players was Glen Dart, centre (seen here with brother Don on right).

WEATHER WATCH

Did March leave a lion or a lamb?

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

If you want to be technical, March did indeed come in like a lamb and go out like a lamb. But if you want to include March 30 as "the end of the month", and you don't like snow, then the month's retreat was a bit lion-like.

"It might have went out like a roaring kitty-cat" is as much as Jim Elstone will concede. "The adage only pertains to the first and last day of the month."

On March first, it was overcast with a high of 5 degrees. On Saturday, March 31, it was overcast and the mercury reached 4.5. With that mild temperature, the 5.2 cm of snow we received on Friday all but disappeared.

"All week long we ranged from 3 to 9 degrees (on Sunday)," Mr. Elstone reports. "The overnight lows ranged from 1 to -13 on Wednesday", which was the last day of the cold snap. "The rest of the upcoming week looks as though the temperatures will remain below normal—which is a high of 7, and a low of -2—mostly in the daytime with the possible exception of Friday but the burst of warm air might be short-lived.

"From Wednesday through Saturday, there's a chance of rain or wet snow. Warm April showers bring May flowers but this is not going to be warm April showers. Temperatures will only be a degree or two above freezing."

Interesting weather patterns to note: The El Nino, a Pacific Ocean current which usually moves from South America to Australia "may reverse its trends. This throws a monkey wrench into the weather pattern for months. It appears it will be a destructive force for next winter and that gives us a pile of problems here."

Some effects may be heavy rains in California and drought in Australia. "They're keeping a very close watch on things to see how this comes about and be able to forecast it more accurately," Mr. Elstone says.

As well, the Aurora Borealis will be giving a show to remember throughout the next year. "The sun is at the maximum of a 12-year sun spot cycle" and these sun flares can cause havoc. The burst of energy particles from a very large flare last March caused a blackout in Montreal.

This solar activity can also cause homing pigeons to lose their way. In August of 1989, a pigeon left Chicago. Last week, a parks worker found it in the Soviet Ukraine.

Weather history: In 1896, the first modern Olympics began in Athens, Greece under threatening skies.

City forgotten during mucky rescue top of the muck to avoid sinking into it. It was slow going, her clothing heavy with the filth and moisture as she carefully made her way in the direction of the now invisible calf. Crows cawed overhead as though egging her on as slowly, painfully slowly, she pulled herself across the barnyard. Finally, she was near the spot and looked frantically for the calf. A mound that could only be the animal was to her left and she reached it a moment later.

Digging down what had to be the head, she pulled it up. Its mouth and nose were coated in the brown stuff and Nora cleaned them off as best she could forcing the mouth open. Now the real fun began, for she had to get it out of there. A calf might look small compared to its mother, but it was still a fair sized animal to pluck from the suction of that barnyard and move to another location.

Nora grabbed hold and pulled with all her might. Just when she thought she was getting nowhere, she could feel the animal start to move upward. She pulled harder and its body emerged. Laying it on its side, she squirmed ahead, her body now perpendicular with the calf's. She then reached back and dragged it after her, keeping its head as high as possible. Over and over Nora repeated the process; moving toward the edge of the barnyard and pulling the creature along. She took its bawling in protest as a good sign and kept at it, now growing concerned that it would catch cold.

While fond of animals in general, it was not a great love of them that dictated Nora continue this odious trek through twelve inches of runny manure. But she had learned the value of calves to the farm's livelihood and it was this that propelled her and her bundle across the barnyard that early spring morning.

She was completely covered now, blinking her eyes to keep them clear. The crows continued above her head, cawing uproariously at so pathetic a sight. Finally she was close enough to the fence that it was once again safe to stand. Utterly exhausted, she tugged the calf onto the higher ground and sat down in a heap. All that remained was to get the creature past the fence.

But she was too tired. She tried lifting it but it seemed to weigh a ton. As soon as she got it up into her arms, every muscle in her body started to shake and she was afraid she'd drop it. How was she ever going to lift it up and over the fence if she could barely stand with it? The warm spring day was still only a day in April, not June and this animal couldn't be more than a few hours old. Nora could just see all her previous efforts being for naught if the animal died before she could get it indoors.

Then, like a fool, she started crying, exhaustion getting the better of her. Two clean streaks slid down her manure-covered face as she lay beside the calf and bawled like a baby herself. It was here Jim found her shortly after. He took one look at her, for he was pretty sure it was she under all that muck, and started to laugh. "What's the matter there, sexy?" he asked, trying not to burst into another binge of hilarity.

"I can't get the calf over the fence, Jim," Nora stated defeatedly. "I'm too bushed. I've just hauled this thing all the way from the low part where it couldn't have been born more than three hours ago. But I'm all used up. Can you give me a hand?"

"Well of course, love," came Jim's reply. "You look a sorry sight indeed. But tell me something Nora. Why were you trying to lift the calf over the fence? Why didn't you just push it through, between the rails?" Then he broke into another gale of laughter.

Nora groaned and buried her face in the mud. "I never thought of that," came her muffled reply.

Ideas to get teenagers off the road

to warn of stops, and there are blue ones I have seen used to de-mark curbs at corners. They really help.

In the only discussion I ever had on this subject with the transport bureaucracy, snowplows were the excuse for not having this kind of safety device in our country.

This trip, I was able to see how they are installed in Michigan and Ohio. They apparently have some device they use after paving that scoops out a little round-bottomed groove, and the reflector is mounted in the bottom, yet can be picked up by your headlights.

This way they are protected from being chipped off by snow plows. Again, there may be a number of days a year that these would be useless because of our weather conditions — but many, many more where they would contribute their life-saving information.

One good idea that Transport Minister Bill Wrye has put forward concerns some control over where and when young teenagers could drive. It would keep them off major freeways until they had some experience, and restrict their night driving, too.

I think perhaps this was really an acknowledgment that the government had made a mistake in not letting insurance companies charge teens for being the largest single accident group, but it is still a good idea.

In case it hadn't dawned on you, it has already been used in a number of American states, and I gather with some favorable effect on how many accidents were experienced by teenagers.

Some states have recognized that the desire to own and drive a car has distorted the thinking of teens, who see it as a status symbol that attracts the opposite sex — and gets them far away from where their parents can observe their drinking — and other habits.

Maryland, which grants only probationary permits to 16 and 17 year-olds, has found that 20 percent of those who got the right to drive have dropped out of school in the last year. They are considering legislation to cancel licences for dropouts.

If they do, they will join 23 other states considering such a law, and six others who already instituted similar legislation — starting with West Virginia — in just the past twelve months.

In New York, Governor Mario Cuomo has gone a step further, and is proposing legislation that would take driving privileges away from a convicted drug user or pusher. Both schemes are certainly getting away from mere matters of 'transportation' but they do have a lot to do with saving lives and horrendous health insurance costs, and an improved life for many young people.

And then there's one city in the state of Alaska that has come up with another angle affecting people who drive cars, one they think is just great. They are charging people for the costs of arresting them!

So far, Fairbanks officials have sent 193 drunken drivers bills averaging $170 for the costs of police, fire and emergency services in connection with their arrests.

Lots of good ideas Stateside. I'll give you just one guess as to the one our Ontario government is most likely to latch onto.

Perhaps YOU should talk to us.

Does owning your own business without investing capital appeal to you? Does influencing people give you satisfaction? Have you more-than-average initiative, self-discipline, and stability? Can you budget yourself on a small starting income, while acquiring the experience and knowledge to earn more?

A positive answer to these questions would indicate that you should talk to us. We are London Life "Freedom 55". Many lawyers, accountants, executives, and sales representatives have discovered that insurance underwriting on a professional basis offers earnings and satisfaction not available elsewhere. To be informed of what this career might offer you, telephone 1-705-745-1324 for an appointment.

L'amour: HHSS students fall in love with Paris

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

PARIS. PARIS. PARIS. There's something about this city of light, a certain je ne sais quoi...

"It's as if someone took you and dipped you in this thing called Paris," says Haliburton Highlands Secondary School student Heather Donaldson, who along with 10 other students and eight adults, spent part of the March Break in this mystical yet very real French city.

"Paris has more of a sense of history," says Lyn Bussey. "You were walking down streets Marie Antoinette could have walked down."

"One night we went for a walk where there were Impressionist artists. We sat down at a cafe and ordered $6 lemonade. Just the atmosphere was special," Jodie Laine adds as the students try to describe Paris's charm. "The architecture, the night, the moon and the sky and how many people were out at midnight on a Sunday night. I felt part of it."

"It was really overwhelming at first. It was an awful feeling," admits Catya Hynard, who, while not getting blasé about the city, learned not to be intimidated by it.

"Atmosphere (with a capital A)," Jodie says, still trying to put a feeling into words. "We felt it really strong. It was Paris."

"It reminded me of Tokyo," chirps in Noriko Yonei, an exchange student from Japan. "Tokyo is not a clean city but it's not as bad as Paris with all the doggies. (There was also a strike of municipal workers at the time.) And there were lots of people."

Their introduction began with an evening walk to Montmartre. The next day's bus trip was a whirlwind tour of all the big names in Paris—Champs Elysee, Arc de Triomphe, Les Invalides, the Eiffel Tower, Notre Dame. As if that didn't battle the senses enough, the same evening included a boat trip along the Seine.

They got to imagine the pomp and circumstance of the royal family with a walk through the Chateau of Versailles and its 2,000 acres of forests.

All the while, they practiced their French—with mixed results.

Paris is now just more than a word for these HHSS students. Girls on the trip included, from left: Jodie Laine, Heather Donaldson, Catya Hynard, Noriko Yonei, Jennifer Medley and Lyn Bussey. The boys were Corbie Kent, Darcy Connaughan, Ed Armstrong and Andy Lewis.

Did you use your French, they're asked. "It was using your finger mostly," says Andy Lewis, who had dropped out of French in Grade 9. "I was scared to talk to these people but after a while I found they want to take your money." It all boiled down to an international theme.

"There were places we went and some people were surprised that we were English-speaking," Lynn Bussey says of her and Jennifer Medley's vastly different experiences. "They thought we were from Quebec."

Sometimes the simplest victory over language meant the most. "I felt very independent when we went to get stamps at the post office. You just come out feeling really good."

And before people get the impression that the trip, organized under the auspices of the French Club and teachers Wayne Cooper and Mary Medley, was a venture of intellectual altruism, you only have to mention one word. Well, two—the Riviera, or Cote d'Azur.

Sun, beaches, more sun and beaches, and better yet, the best ice cream in the world, the students say in a collective ahhhhhhhhh. All thoughts of Paris disappear as they remember the sun-soaked bliss of Nice.

Not all the time was spent lying comatose on the beach, however. In three days they managed to take in an artists' colony in a fortified medieval town, a perfume factory at Eze, Place Massena, Corniche, Monte Carlo and Roquebrune.

But then, back in the classroom at the high school where they're telling their story, the bell rings and the students' reverie is broken. It's back to school, back to math class, and back to reality. At least now they can say "We'll always have Paris."

The second game was played the next day in Haliburton. This one ended in a 2-2 tie after 10 minutes of overtime. Each team gained one point for their efforts which gave Sunderland a 3-1 lead in the series.

Scoring for Haliburton was Jamie Fryer from John Hewson. Hewson also scored the second goal assisted by Colin Morrison.

Sunderland goals were from Scott Thomas unassisted, and John Calder from Thomas.

The series switched back to Sunderland for Game 3. At the end of the third period, the score was 1-1. But with only 3:42 left in the overtime, Johnny Hewson scored the winner for Haliburton. He was assisted by Tim Stouffer and Colin Morrison.

This victory for Haliburton tied the series at 3-3.

The other Haliburton goal was scored by Colin Morrison from Billy Koz. Scoring for Sunderland was Scott Thomas from Andy Shewen.

Game 4 was played Sunday, April 1 in Haliburton. D. J. Gunning pounded home the first goal of the game for the Huskies at 5:19 of the first period, assisted by Mike Hartwick. The game was still 1-0 with only 4:06 left in the third period when Scott Thomas scored for Sunderland unassisted. The game looked like it was going into overtime when with only 4 seconds left on the clock, Johnny Hewson tipped one in from Colin Morrison, giving Haliburton the game and a 5-3 lead in the series.

The next game will be in Sunderland on April 7.

Bantams must beat Manvers Wednesday part of the game on track, as they each scored to give Haliburton a 2-1 win and tie the series at two games apiece.

Back on home ice on Sunday, the Sport Stop boys were hoping to seize the advantage, but it turned out to be Manvers who connected for the most goals, six, while Haliburton notched four. Paul Dovell had two goals, while singles were scored by Jamie Keefer and Jason Parish.

Game six this Wednesday in Manvers is a "must-win" challenge for the local boys. If they do get the victory, the seventh and deciding game will take place this Friday at 8 p.m. at the Dysart arena.

OLD FASHIONED SERVICE IS A PRICELESS COMPONENT OF EVERYTHING WE SELL

Looking back after 90 years:

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

ANNA DEMILLE MAY BE 90, but her secret for living a long and happy life is centuries older than that.

"You have to do lots of work and go to bed early and get up early and love everybody—your neighbour as well as yourself," Mrs. DeMille says at her birthday party on Sunday. "If you treat people right, they'll treat you right, too."

In her younger days, Mrs. DeMille needed the goodwill of her neighbours. A young widow with two children to raise during the Depression, good neighbours—and that "lots of work"—made all the difference in the world.

'Times were hard,' remembers Anna DeMille

To go back in time a little though, she was born on April 1, 1900. Luckily, children didn't make too many jokes about her being an "April Fool's joke" and her days spent in Moncton, New Brunswick were happy ones.

When she married Hans Gunner Pripp, they moved out to Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, where they raised foxes. They were returning back to Saskatchewan from a visit in Moncton when Mr. Pripp got a job at the Sherwood Forest Boys Camp. Owned by the Irwins on Boshkung Lake, it was one of the first holiday destinations in the Highlands.

Mr. Pripp was a maintenance worker here for two years before his death in 1938. That left his wife on her own with two young children—Hans and Il-en (Maguire).

"We lived right over here in the little house and I grew strawberries and gardened," Mrs. DeMille says Sunday, gesturing out the window of the home on Green Lake Road she shares with her daughter. "It was really hard but I managed. We never went hungry and we never went cold."

Most of the money—pensions didn't exist—came from the sales of the vegetables and fruit she grew in her bountiful garden. People came to the house and bought strawberries for 50 cents a quart. She'd also do her own preserving and canning.

Seven years after her first husband died, Mrs. Pripp married Samuel DeMille (who was raised by the Redner family so was sometimes known as Samuel Redner). He had sold the Pripps their land, and later he would sell what is now the airport site to Stanhope Township—"$1,800 for the farm and the big white house," Mrs. DeMille remembers. "They were hard times."

Meanwhile, her children grew and prospered and now Mrs. DeMille has eight grandchildren (one of whom died in an accident) and 13 great-grandchildren.

What did she try to teach her children? "To be good and to use people kind and respect old people and young people alike. Just every day clean living."

That approach to life was celebrated as many of those grandchildren, great-grandchildren and good neighbours gathered to wish Mrs. DeMille all the best on her 90th birthday.

tion Environmental Assessment project and the Frost Centre Crown Management Unit Timber Management Plan. The Charlie Farquharson film Who's Lookin' After My Forest? was both humorous and informative, and a local trapper demonstrated his skill at skinning.

So what was there to make the children laugh? Well, after a ride on a horse-drawn wagon, kids had the opportunity to tour a sugar bush and see how maple syrup is made.

And kids saw that when you boil down that syrup even more, and pour it over fresh snow, you get gooey maple taffy that tingles on your tongue.

After gobbling down the maple candy, children were able to test their pioneering skills by splitting dots with an axe and cutting "cookies" out of a log with a saw.

Everyone enjoyed the brunch of pancakes and sausages drizzled with (what else?) fresh maple syrup. And those who wanted to take some sweet treats home had their choice of purchasing either maple syrup, candy and sugar from Haliburton's Iron Kettle Maple Products, or baked goods provided by the Dorset United Church.

Did you know? On an average sap run, you need to boil down 30 to 40 litres of sap to produce one litre of syrup;

—Sap flows after a frosty night when daytime temperatures reach 4 degrees Celsius, but the diurnal temperature range is more significant than the daytime high;

—One tap is needed to produce one litre of syrup;

—One bush cord of hardwood will boil down 3,000 litres of sap to 90 litres of syrup;

—Canada produces three quarters of the world production of maple syrup and in 1980, 10.8-million litres of syrup were produced;

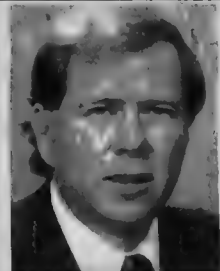

—Ontario's greatest production was in 1861 when maple syrup was a staple instead of a luxury.

Show the supreme Kaye compliment

by NANCY ROBICHAUD

IF IMITATION is the sincerest form of flattery, then Kirk McMahon paid a supreme compliment to the memory of Danny Kaye. This dead ringer for the famous entertainer had the Concert Series crowd on its feet Sunday night with his program "Shaking Like a Leaf".

During the performance of twenty numbers from the comedian's repertoire, we could comment that the occasional last note of a marathon song was pushed out of tune a little. It took a few minutes to get used to the darker vocal colour of McMahon's voice. But once the audience got used to the singer's superb baritone instrument, we could relax and concentrate on performance style, facial expressions and antics which were Danny Kaye's. Imagine the hours of film footage this man has studied. He's really done his homework.

Energy is the one word that sums up Mr. McMahon's performance. Physical energy knew no limit as he threw himself into "Pavlova" partnering the imaginary ballerina. He still had plenty of zip an hour and a half later as he galloped into the sunset on his Act Two Romany pony.

Vocal energy was much in evidence too. He was a one-man symphony in "Little Fiddle"; his gypsy violin was wonderful too. The range of his voice is wide, indeed. The vocal chords must be made of steel.

The Haliburton audience had a share of the limelight too. Evelyn Morgan was a splendid dancing partner in "Ballin' the Jack" while the entire hall resounded in a three-part gypsy chorus that any Hungarian tavern would die for. We were pretty good on the gibberish too.

No performer does it all alone. In this show the work of two very talented women was in evidence. The very beautiful Lona Davis provided superb piano accompaniment and joined in the comedy on a couple of occasions. The other woman was Sylvia Fine, Danny Kaye's wife, whose music and lyrics provided most of the material for the show. She is indeed a master of the novelty song.

Mr. McMahon has the presence, the style, the energy, the appearance of the famous red head. The rapid fire diction is almost there. What an energy jolt for the end of the season! What a way to launch next year's ticket campaign. Here's next year's line up: November 25—The Eisler Singers; February 24—Trio Vivant, piano, violin, cello; and April 14—Anton Kuerti, piano.

Students learn how not to judge people

STUDENT LIFE AT HHSS

by: ERIN LYNCH

LOOKING AT THE POSTER, students didn't know what to expect. A picture of a wheelchair with a lightning bolt through it with the words "Exploding the myths of the physically disabled" didn't prepare us.

The play performed by Rolling Thunder consisted of ten short skits. These skits told how people with physical handicaps feel they're treated, and how it's not necessary or fair. I think the reason why students feel uncomfortable around these people, and try to stay away from them or stare, is because we're not exposed to handicapped people very much. We just assume things. We should find out about things before making our decisions.

The play was a comedy, but it was sort of wacky humour. I know a lot of students didn't know if they should be laughing at particular scenes, if it was right or proper. It felt wrong to laugh while a person was telling you how they are mistreated. Different people found different things funny. A person beside you may have been rolling on the ground laughing and you would be asking yourself, "What do they find humorous in that?"

I thought the play was very good and helped make people realize that handicapped people may not be just like you and me, but they are human beings capable of doing a lot of things that we don't give them credit for.

Mrs. Brydon's Grade 9 English class is entering the 1990 national letter writing contest. This year's topic is "What can we the young people today do for world hunger?" Mrs. Brydon had three people from the community who have visited Third World countries come in and tell them about it. Eric Lilius and David and Judy Phillips told about the climate, the poverty, and what can be done. They did this through a slide presentation, maps and pictures. Then Judy Phillips prepared a typical meal that would be served. It consisted of rice, beans and tortias. This had a totally different flavour and didn't come close to our normal lunches of sandwiches, hamburgers and fries. It was very interesting and I'm sure that it really helped the Grade 9s with their contest!

Last Friday's '50s, '60s, '70s and '80s dance was very good. (In my opinion, one of the best all year). The decorations were fabulous and everyone seemed to enjoy the choice of music. We had a surprise visitor, Jarrett Gentle. By the look on his face he seemed very happy to be there and everyone was happy to see him at the dance.

On Saturday, Paul Portelli's exhibit, Goose Walk, opened at the Rails' End Gallery. The whimsical paper mache figures are sure to bring a smile. Also showing is Jerry Coulas's Colours of Memories. Both shows close on April 28

Snowbirds strike out on baseball games in Florida

DORSET NEWS

by: PHYLLIS BRISCOE

Congratulations to Ted and Gloria Morris on the occasion of their 35th wedding anniversary. The couple is holidaying in the sunny south.

Some of the "Snow Birds" are trickling back from the south to enjoy our balmy weather. Jack and Irene Clayton and Joyce McKey just returned from an enjoyable time in the sun at Redington Beach, Florida. They deplored not being able to see any baseball games.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Peggy Walker and her family. Peggy's mother, Mrs. Mabel Olive Coles, passed away at Barrie Royal Victoria Hospital on March 16 a short time before her 90th birthday. Our thoughts are with you Peg.

The Dorset Senior Club had a great turnout last Wednesday, with games being the order of the day. Beginning with Daylight Savings Time the club meetings will be at 7:30

Reunion is planned

WEST GUILFORD NEWS

by: ELEANOR COOPER

Stanhope Library hours are as follows: Tuesday 1-3 p.m.; Wednesday 7-9 p.m.; and Saturday 1-3 p.m. This will be the pattern until the end of June.

This year Canada Day celebrations at the Centre will take the form of a school reunion. A meeting will be arranged for those who have attended this school in the past and not-so-distant past to see what can be done that will be appropriate and interesting for all. Get the ideas going and when the date is set come with your suggestions and information and see what we can come up with to celebrate S.S. No. 2 and 3 Guilford's life and memories.

Congratulations to Linda (Fountain) and Brent Blakeney on the arrival of daughter Stacy-Lyn Marie on February 28, 1990.

Max Cowen and fiancée had a visit with Nila and Bert Cowen on the weekend.

Shirley Bryant, Kathy Whitfield and Lisa Anderson had a lovely bridal shower on March 31 for Sharon Packard of Eagle Lake.

Guests of the Rapson household this weekend included Brian and Judith Matheson and Wendy and Michael Rapson.

Toby (Bernice) West of Saanichton, B.C., is visiting her mother, Elva Cooper for some weeks.

Mary Garside of Coleman Lake has just written from her Florida home. Down there she is conducting sessions of water exercise, yoga and adult aerobics. This year Mary would like to start groups for daily sessions of exercise for fun in May at the centre: 9-10 a.m. There would be no fee and music is provided by Mary. Mary's note says that she can cater to every age group at one time by varying the program. Further details will be forthcoming after I have replied and heard from Mrs. Garside again.

Earl and I attended the 25th anniversary celebration of Walter and Liz Hobden at Eganville on Saturday. Some of the guests included Doris Moore, Rene Roberts, Neva and Harry Hobden, Walter's sister, Blanche, Murray and Eileen Agnew, and Jack and Maria Upton. The guests enjoyed a social hour at the Hobden's home, then went to the dinner at the legion where the hall was brightened by the blue and silver balloons and streamers.

McKNIGHT GRADUATION: Mr. and Mrs. Gary McKnight are proud to announce that their eldest son, Cory, after successfully completing the law and security administration course at Sir Sandford Fleming College, has since graduated from the Ontario Police College in Aylmer, Ontario and from the C.O. Bick College in Toronto. He is now employed by the Metropolitan Police Force Commission at the 41st Division in Scarborough, Ontario.

WILBERFORCE NEWS

by: WINNIE SCHOFIELD

Ruth and Ross Casey of Wilberforce attended the wedding of their son Gary on Saturday, March 17 at the Anglican Church on Orono. Gary's bride was Laura Crossing. On March 31, a reception was held at the Lloyd Watson Centre with 148 people in attendance. Later a dance was enjoyed with music by a DJ from Toronto. The couple will be living in Oshawa.

May they enjoy many happy years together.

The Highland Grove Public Library is sponsoring an Easter Theme Poster Contest on April 14. You will see notices in the stores and the schools. Judging will take place and prizes given out on April 14, at the Highland Grove Library. Children are asked to bring in their posters and join in the fun. Refreshments will be served. All entries will receive prizes. For more information call Joanne Burroughs at 448-2218 for the Highland Grove area or Florence Elliott at 448-2618 for the Wilberforce area. They would like everyone to please register early.

This week will end Winter sports at the Wilberforce Arena and Curling Rink. One of the last popular events at this time was the Keith Cameron Memorial Invitational bonspiel. The games took place Friday and Saturday with 12 rinks in competition. Proud winner of the President's trophy was the rink of George — Please turn to page 26

100 revellers gather at hall for birthday party

KINMOUNT & AREA NEWS

by: MILLIE MOSS

I've received my annual newsletter from one of our American summertime visitors. Cuthbert Lamb of Woodberry Forest, Virginia, says he will see us at the end of April and I hope he is feeling much better by now. He says he had to spend a week in hospital at the end of January with congestive heart failure and while there picked up a virus which left him tired and weak and still does not feel 100 percent. However, he, his wife and a daughter from Toronto went to Lafayette, Louisiana for the Mardi Gras Week where they had a wonderful time with masked men in costume "raiding" a farmhouse and demanding a couple of chickens for their gumbo, scaring the children and jumping off their horses and dancing with the women. Needless to say, Cuthbert ate piles of crawfish and oysters, catfish and gumbo and even danced Cajun style. I look forward to your letters Cuth!

Welcome home and back to bowling Alice and Earl Huras.

Winner of the Norland Volunteer Firemen's Hockey Pool for March 24 was Maggie LeCraw of Norland.

Ada Ferguson of Head Lake along with her son Thomas Mathewson of Baddow visited with Mary Paulson, Rita Davis and Mrs. Orma Davey at the Cliffside Villa at Fenelon Falls on March 21. Ada said that Mrs. Davey hadn't changed a bit since she last saw her three years ago and that Mary Paulson keeps busy making beautiful afghans and bedspreads from yarn. I enjoyed your phone call Mrs. Ferguson.

On March 24 Norlands W.I. Hall was a very busy place when a surprise party was held to honour Elizabeth Fryer's eightieth birthday.

Balloons, garlands and a lovely hand-made sign for the birthday lady, pretty tablecloths and floral centrepieces and added to that a table set beautifully with lovely roses, carnations, violets, etc. All gifts to Elizabeth plus a number of other gifts and a beautiful cake made in the shape of an open book and many cards succeeded in making the Hall very festive. Many friends and relatives attended from Toronto, Norland, Claremont, Collingwood and Mississauga. Two of Elizabeth's three grandsons made very nice speeches and Elizabeth deserved every bit of it. Many more to you Elizabeth! I was happy to be part of your special day.

Happy anniversary Amy and Larry Coker on March 24 and to Audrey and Wil Belanger on March 26.

Aileen and George Brown of Kinmount celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday, March 27. On March 25 their three sons, four daughters, seventeen grandchildren and five great grandchildren gathered together with many other family and friends to help the happy couple celebrate the very special day. The immediate family went to the PineStone for dinner and had a great time, later coming back to the Kinmount Legion where they met the grandchildren. Clara Watson, now of Oshawa, formerly of Howland Junction Road was in attendance as she was fifty years ago, when she was Aileen's bridesmaid. Aileen's sister from Kirkfield and George's two brothers, Margaret Kylie, all were present at the Legion Hall which was beautifully ages ten to thirteen years to join in the meetings held every Tuesday 7pm to 9pm at the Coboconk Legion Branch 519. Some of the activities to be enjoyed include campouts, knots, marching, citizenships, comradeship, navy lore, morse code, semaphore, 2400 hour clock, phonetic alphabet. If you wish to know more you may call your commanding officer, Lieutenant Bill Moss Jr., at 454-3255. Those uniforms are really sharp kids!

Dinner guests of Mary and John Pyke in Norland on Sunday evening included Bill Card, his friend Noreen, his daughter Karen Card from Jacksons Point, Helen Graham, Bill and decorated for this special occasion. Many congratulatory scrolls were received from the Parliament Buildings in Ottawa and Queens Park. Aileen would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for a beautiful day, to Bonnie Kellow who made a gorgeous cake and came from her Port Perry home for the affair, to the Legion for all their thoughtfulness, to Father Felix who composed and sang "The Wedding Song" which he built around the wedding vows and had written just for George and Aileen, to all family and friends for the many beautiful greeting cards from "the best neighbours in Ontario."

The Navy League Cadet Corps of Canada is still looking for boys and girls Millie Moss all of Kinmount. We all enjoyed a great day.

Just got the word that close to 100 guests signed the book at Elizabeth Fryer's eightieth birthday party.

Well folks, stay well and happy, call me at 4564-2395 if you wish your news included in this column and hang in there. It's really beginning to feel like spring. Don't forget to warn the kids about water filled areas. We want to see them still here in the summer.

FOREST FIRES BURN MORE THAN TREES...

During 1989, 50 forest fires occurred in the Haliburton and Minden areas. The months of April and May are the most dangerous time. Dead grass and leaves will allow a fire to spread very quickly, resulting in the potential loss of life, dwellings and forested land.

Before you burn your grass, brush or debris, remember these important points:

1. You must obtain a fire permit;
2. Ensure that a responsible person tends the fire;
3. Keep the fire under control;
4. Upon completion, put your fire DEAD OUT. Even if it appears out, stir it and drown it with water, again and again, until you're sure it is out.
5. No burning allowed between 10:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. (with the exception of industrial permits).

 FIRE PERMITS ARE FREE OF CHARGE.

During the fire season (April 1st to October 31st) the Forest Fires Prevention Act requires you to obtain a permit to be kept at the burning site and shown to an officer upon request. If you don't, you could be fined up to $1,000.00, imprisonment up to three months and liable for any costs and expenses involved in extinguishing a resulting fire.

Hodgson students speak out in new series

HODGSON HIGHLIGHTS

by: J. Douglas Hodgson
Elementary School Students

by ANNA EDWARDS

GRADE 8

THIS IS THE FIRST in a bi-weekly series of articles written by students at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School to inform the public about what is going on at our school. This first article will be written by a Grade 8 student, and the next by a Grade 7 student, and so on. We hope that you will read and enjoy what we have written.

The Grade 8 program does a lot of things, including preparing us all for high school. Our guidance periods are taught by our home room teachers, Mr. Clarke, Mrs. Lewis or Mr. Scott, and they consist mostly of talks about high school options, career decisions, and achieving our academic goals. We also build up our self-confidence and self-image.

Sometimes Family Studies is similar to guidance, stressing self-esteem and teaching against prejudices, but we never let the topic get too personal. In Family Studies, formerly known as Home Economics, we also do the usual sewing projects and cooking sessions. With Mrs. Bain as our teacher, everything always runs smoothly.

On the other hand, "Shop", now known as Industrial Arts, is sometimes thought of as the opposite of Family Studies, even though both subjects are open to all students, male or female. In this class we usually work with wood, metal and plastics. In Grade 8 we have a little more freedom than we had in Grade 7, and we are given the option of creating any project we choose. Mr. Dawson helps those who cannot find ideas, and is always there to help.

All the Grade 8s take Art, usually taught by home room teachers, but sometimes by Mr. Way. Some classes, depending on who is teaching them, vary between cartooning and finger painting. The classes try to stimulate students to use their talents to their full capacity, and usually, the results are stunning.

Grade 8 music is more challenging than it was in Grade 7. We have a variety of instruments, and many students are taking up a second or third instrument. Some Grade 8s are involved in the band we have set up, directed by Mr. Whiteway, and we are planning a concert for the end of the year.

Our Physical Education classes are a continuation of last year's course, with gymnastics, volleyball, folk dancing, basketball, floor hockey and other physical activities. Mr. Hoare teaches all the classes, and he also coached the volleyball teams, along with Mr. Cowey, Mr. McKinlay and Mr. Scott. One of the teams won the tournament, and one was a semi-finalist.

I haven't said much about our academic classes so far, but I think that they all deserve a little attention. All of our Math classes are taught by our home room teachers, and we have concentrates on fractions, ratio, percent and other necessities. All classes also have a geometry period once a cycle, as we would never get the entire Grade 8 course done without it.

Our Science classes, all taught by Mrs. Lewis, have been exciting—tapping trees and boiling syrup.

Anna Edwards

We also did an extensive experiment on the growth of the mung bean near the beginning of the year, which raised many people's interest. Lately we have been watching videos about living things, the topic we are studying at the moment.

Mr. Scott teaches all the Grade 8s History and Geography, which are semestered. We finished our work in History in late February. In History, we studied the war of 1812, the rebellions of Upper and Lower Canada, and the Riel Rebellion of Red River. So far in Geography we have reviewed our mapping skills, and are now concentrating on time zones.

All of our English classes are taught by our home room teachers. The classes do vary, but usually we either work out of the text for reading, and teachers will assign us a novel to read. Some classes have read books such as "Mrs. Mike" and "Don't Care High". They were both very well chosen. Connected to English is Creative Writing, when we write and hand in essays or short stories. About a month ago, we all did speeches in our classes, and some were chosen to go on in the Legion competition. Some Grade 8 winners were Jonathan Bishop, Mark

LOCAL STUDENTS DID the county proud on Sunday during the zone finals of the Royal Canadian Legion Public Speaking Contest held in Lindsay.

Students of the Haliburton County contingent took the opportunity to shine in the competition against students from across Victoria County.

J. Douglas Hodgson student Charlene Simms took second in the intermediate level for Grades 7 and 8 with her speech on teen suicide. (She actually came in second for that level in the Haliburton competition, but a hockey game forced first-place winner Mark Morissette to miss the final speech competition.)

Archie Stouffer student Damon Smith came in third in the same category with his speech, a satirical look at television advertising.

And Haliburton Highlands Secondary School student Dawn Rowan placed second in the senior level for Grades 8 to 10 with her speech on giving speeches.

Concert to be Out of This World

by SUSAN GROBER
Staff Reporter

CHILDREN MAY FIND THEMSELVES rocketed Out of This World when husband-and-wife singing team Kim and Jerry Brodey hit the high school stage this Sunday as part of the Children's Concert Series.

Actually, Out of This World is the title of the award-winning duo's latest of three albums, adding to Family Pie and Simple Magic.

No strangers to the stage, the couple emceed the Kids' Woodstock musical gala last Labour Day weekend at Toronto's High Park, and were special guests on two episodes of CBC-TV's Fred Penner's Place.

As well, their song Rights On! was chosen by Save The Children Canada to help United Nations Declaration of the Rights of the Child.

Kim and Jerry Brodey in Concert is brought to the stage by three-time Chalmers Award-winning playwright Robert Morgan, and captures the imagination and involves the audience every step of the way.

Appealing to the imaginations of young people, and leaving plenty of room for participation, the Toronto couple sings about things such as robots, television, Halloween, outer space, fear of the dark, ecology, and even racism.

Influenced by the Beatles, Red Skelton, and Bruce Cockburn, Mr. Brodey has developed a unique songwriting style. He also acts, sings, and plays guitar, synthesizer, mandolin and banjo. The Sarnia native has also recorded two solo albums, Songs Have Wings and Carnival, and made television appearances on Mr. Dress-up, Kidsworld and Live It Up.

Their band, The Leapin' Lizards, provide a big sound with synthesizer, bass guitar and drums creating exotic rhythms in musical styles which reflect their cultural diversity, ranging from reggae to rock'n roll to operetta.

The show is at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School on April 8 at 2 p.m., and tickets cost $6 at the door.

Television viewers (less than 4' tall) may recognize Kim and Jerry Brodey when the husband and wife arrive at the high-school this Sunday. Their songs will certainly be familiar.

Grade 8 students excited about Quebec trip

Morissette, and Charlene Simms, who represented our school in the Victoria-Haliburton county zone championships, and placed second.

Most students participate in French, which this year is designed to prepare us for the tougher high school classes next year. On April 18th, approximately half of us will go on the French trip to Quebec City, and there will be special activities for those who are not going. French periods are an opportune time for students with learning disabilities to work with Mrs. Boyle. She, Mr. Wright and Mr. Clarke help make learning fun in their respective areas of Special Education, the Library and Computers.

We have another special program at J. Douglas Hodgson called the Enrichment Program, where selected students from each grade level miss a few classes a week and join Miss Harrison for special activities. Sometimes we will do critical thinking exercises, or weight a decision's pros and cons, or do an activity called "examine both sides", looking at all sides of an argument to open our minds to other possibilities. To apply these thinking skills to a real problem, we assume various roles to discuss solutions to a problem, such as overcrowded schools in Haliburton County. We also hold informal debates on subjects such as stereotyping and environmental issues. The classes are exciting and interesting, and we learn things that we would not normally learn in class.

Well, that pretty much sums up our Grade 8 year so far, and nothing dreadful has happened.

"REALTORS KNOW THEIR NEIGHBORHOODS."

Some may think that real estate is just a piece of land with a building on it; each property, though, is unique in its features, and very special to its owner. One of many REALTOR services is the special knowledge of the neighborhoods in your community and the properties within them.

When choosing a REALTOR, you have the opportunity to select someone with that knowledge of either your own area-if you're selling your home-or the one where you plan to live. In any event, your REALTOR will make sure that your expectations are met.

...and that can make a REAL difference!

REALTOR is a trademark which identifies real estate practitioners who are members of The Canadian Real Estate Association and as such adhere to a strict Code of Ethics.

Obituary

Frederick Earl Shipley

Frederick Earl Shipley entered into rest suddenly at his home in Haliburton, Ontario, on March 16, 1990. Born in Toronto, November 16, 1914. He with his mother and father, Frederick and Ella Shipley, and sisters, May, Ivy and Grace moved to Tomstown to take up farming in December 1914. They resided there until 1923 when Frederick Shipley, who was also a contractor, was killed suddenly in a construction accident. The family then moved back to Toronto.

In 1930 when Ella Shipley was remarried to William (Bill) Webb, Earl returned to the north country with them, where they again took up farming in Heaslip. He held a number of jobs working in the bush, Kerr-Adison gold mine in Virginiatown and with McNamara Construction helping to build Highway 11 as it was extended and improved from North Bay up.

In 1942 he joined the RCSC and served overseas during World War II until 1946. He was awarded with several service medals. He returned to Heaslip, when he joined Branch 104 of the Royal Canadian Legion and also worked with Lloyd Briggs building homes until he started to work for the LCBO in 1948, where he and his life long friend, Jack Fearnley, worked together once again.

In October 1952 he married Janet Harber of Buffalo, New York. They remained in Englehart until 1958, when Earl became manager of a brand new LCBO store in Haliburton, Ontario. He worked there until he retired from the LCBO in 1979. During his life in Englehart and Haliburton, Earl was always involved in serving his community working for the Council of Eventual Township, the Legion, Cubs and Scouts, numerous building committees, bingos, the Haliburton Community Housing Corporation and many other projects. He was a very good "handyman" and loved fixing things, as well as making them, especially working with wood, making many beautiful articles. He also enjoyed gardening, fishing, hunting and camping.

During their marriage, Earl and Jan were blessed with three daughters, Rene, Nancy and Kathy, two son-in-laws, Gerry and David, and two grandchildren, Alison and Benjamin. He is also survived by two sisters, Ivy Mitchell of Toronto and Grace Jarvis of Georgetown, as well as many nieces and nephews, numerous friends in Englehart and Haliburton and also the children of Jack and Isobel Fearnley who fondly called him uncle. He was predeceased by his sister May of New Liskeard in 1985.

Earl was awarded a Life Membership in the Legion while in Haliburton and was a dedicated Legionnaire. He was also given the title of "Doc Shipley" while working for the LCBO in Haliburton.

Earl was a very loving, kind husband, father, grandfather, brother and good friend to many, who will be sadly missed by all who knew him.

ON BEHALF of my daughter Elaine, her husband Robert, and their children Laura, Brett and Blake; also of my son James, and his daughter Julia, please accept my heartfelt thanks for the many cards of sympathy, floral tributes, food and donations to the Heart and Stroke Foundation, and prayers, in the demise of my very dear wife Agnes Muriel. Also thanks to Dr. Dean Stokes, Dr. Karl Hartwick and Dr. Bob Heyes, who with the nurses and staff at our local hospital did everything within their powers to keep her alive. My deep thanks to the nurses too. To that we add The Gordon Monk Funeral Home which gives a personal touch that makes a funeral more than a burial. Also the Choir under the leadership of Melissa Stephens, at Zion United Church Carnarvon; their anthem touched us deeply. To the Rev. Ed Moll for his message, and to the Rev. Jim Crighton for his prayers. The many condolences, and good wishes leave me overwhelmed. Again, thank you. Rev. John B. Spencley.

THE FAMILY of the late Ernest "Jack" Hills would like to express their heartfelt appreciation to all the friends and associates of Jack who made this time of sorrow so much easier for those of us who so dearly loved a wonderful husband, father and grandfather. Your flowers, donations and cards of sympathy have comforted us in our grief with the warmth of friendship and the deep sense of community which so engaged Jack in the service of the people who contribute to the quality of life in the area in which we live. A special thanks to Gord Monk, whose kindness and assistance so greatly served to ease the anguish of our loss, and to the Rev. Dawn Gilby whose spiritual strength was such a comfort to our family. IN MEMORIAM

PRINGLE, Rosa — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, who passed away April 10, 1988. Sadly missed, but always in our hearts.
Roberta, Ted, Rose Marie & James
32-P-4

SPROATS: In loving memory of a dear wife and mother Margaret who passed away April 3, 1987. If we had all the world to give, We'd give it yes and more, To hear her voice, See her smile, And greet her at the door. But as we can't dear mother, We go and tend your grave, And leave behind a token of love. We like to think when life is over, That we will see her again, And she is standing at the door. To welcome us. Sadly missed by husband Rod, and son Craig.
32-P-4

GRAHAM, MILLIE ILENE: In memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother who passed away April 9, 1985. Beautiful memories. Are wonderful things, They last till the longest day, They never wear out, They never get lost, And can never be given away. To some you may be forgotten, To others a part of the past, But to us who loved and lost you, Your memory will always last. Always remembered by Ron, Tanya, Scott, Randy, Wayne, Lou, Nicole and Chris.
32-P-4

IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM, MILLIE: In loving memory of a dear sister and aunt who passed away April 9, 1985. Although we smile and make no fuss, No one misses her more than us, And when old times we oft recall, That's when we miss her most of all. Lovingly remembered by sister Ellen, brother-in-law Art and family.
32-P-4

NESBITT: In loving memory of my father Samuel Joseph Nesbitt who died April 17, 1968. Gone to be with Jesus. Sometimes it seems like an eternity, Since you two were called away, But as I think of the love we all shared, It seems like just yesterday. We visited your graves and oft shed tears there, We return and look at your picture on the wall. A part of us went with you, dear! Our memories of you two will comfort us, As tears of loneliness still fall, Our family circle has been broken, Some links gone from the chain, The last prayer I had with you each, I quite well recall again and again. As I felt and knew your spirits' descending, As Angels carried you to a home on high, We are only parted for awhile, So I breathe a sigh, Mansions eternal some day I shall claim. We'll greet you my loved ones in glory, Never to part in that better land, And glorify his name. Sadly missed, ever remembered, daughter Blanche, Grandsons David, Don, Doug & Glenn, Granddaughters Carolyn, & Rosemary.
